AMRINE BARES PRISON DOPE, LIQUOR SALES

Acting Warden Declares Ohio Records Destroyed Before Davey Left Office.

PLAYED POKER AND DICE

Discloses Gambling Behind Prison Walls; Woodard to Fight Ouster Charges.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Investigation of Ohio penitentiary, which precipitated the suspension of Warden James C. Woodard, disclosed today that a huge but undetermined number of state records were burned there before former Gov. Martin L. Davey left office on Jan. 9, Acting Warden W. F. Amrine said today.

"Three or four truckloads of records were burned at the prison powerhouse, our information indicates," Amrine said.

"We don't know all the facts about them yet or do we know definitely what departments they were from."

Told Records 'Useless.'

Woodard asserted, however, that to his knowledge the only records burned were a consignment sent to the penitentiary by the state treasurer's office and were described as useless material. The suspended warden said he knew nothing of any current records of state departments having been destroyed.

Amrine, who took charge of the 105-year-old prison Thursday, said his investigation had uncovered substantial evidence of liquor and narcotic peddling and of some gambling. He denied published reports that he found large-stake gaming had been permitted or that a bar was operated within the walls.

Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood five weeks ago ordered the investigation of what he termed "unwarranted conditions" and named Amrine, superintendent of correction, as acting warden when he suspended Woodard.

'Not Guilty,' Woodard Says.

Woodard had been ordered to "clean up" the prison, one of the nation's largest with 4,200 con-

Find Stolen Auto Abandoned In Lot Two Months Ago

An automobile stolen in Mansfield on Jan. 4 had been found in the heart of the Ashland business district within three blocks of the police station. It apparently had stood there unnoticed for two months.

The machine was recovered by Ashland County Sheriff Dale Hammond in a parking lot 500 foot off the main street of the city. The original license plates were missing and attached to the car was a set of license plates which the sheriff said had been stolen from another car in Ashland on Jan. 4.

Hammond said his attention had been called to the abandoned car yesterday by operators of the parking lot who told him that the machine had been there for at least 30 days, and probably for the entire two months.

They said they did not know when the car had been parked there or by whom it had been left. Examination showed that the machine had not been damaged and that the fuel tank was partly filled.

Howard Myers of Shiloh who owns the car said the speedometer showed that it had been driven only about 30 miles.

Myers, who operates a farm store at 132 North Main street, reported to Mansfield police on Jan. 4, that his car had been taken from the rear of the establishment.

NEW SUSPECT

Los Angeles Starts New Quiz In Campus Murder.

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Detectives today continued to grill a new and "important" suspect in the Anya Sosoyeva campus murder mystery.

Miss Sosoyeva, 32, a Russian dancer and formerly with the Ziegfeld Follies was bludgeoned last Friday night on the campus of the Los Angeles City college night school while she was hurrying to the school auditorium to appear in a stage play.

Plans Fight

James C. Woodard, suspended as warden at the Ohio Penitentiary, has announced he will fight ouster charges which appear likely to be filed in view of the current investigation at the prison. Liquor and narcotics have been sold to convicts and state records have been burned at the institution, W. F. Amrine, acting warden disclosed today.

ARMS SCANDAL HITS 5 NATIONS

Plan to Smuggle U. S. Planes, Guns to Spain Blamed In Turkish Cabinet's Fall.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — An international plot to smuggle American arms and warplanes through Canada, France and Belgium to Loyalist Spain on forged documents of the Turkish government was revealed today to have caused the fall of the Turkish cabinet.

As a result, two prominent American Airplane corporations are under investigation by the department of justice, and repercussions of the scandal have shaken the capitals of five countries.

The amazing plot was nipped by the arms control division of the state department, but not until forty Grumman fighting planes, assembled by the Canadian Car and Foundry company, of Fort Williams, Ontario, Canada, had been shipped to Loyalist Spain

IT CAN'T LAST

Balmy Weather Ends Tonight, Rain and Colder Forecast.

Mansfield enjoyed another balmy day today, but again, it was too good to last very long.

From a mark of 52 at noon today, the mercury is scheduled to nose-dive tonight and Sunday. Rain is scheduled for tonight, and in the north it may turn to snow. It will be colder tonight, says the forecast and "much colder" Sunday and Monday.

Meanwhile, spring-like weather prevailed here today with the low mark for the past 24 hours only 34. Yesterday's high was 48, and that had been equalled before noon today, with indications that an even higher mark would be reached before the predicted cold wave sets in.

DREAM BRINGS MISSING BANK OFFICIAL HOME

Mansfielder Plays Hunch, Finds Loudonville Man Walking on Chicago Street.

SUFFERED FROM AMNESIA

Says Illness, Nervous Strain Forced Him to 'Get Away From It All.'

Milton H. Spreng, former Loudonville banker, who suffered a nervous breakdown two weeks ago and left his business and home without telling his family where he was going, was back today after wandering to the Pacific coast and back.

Although tired and nervous, he had recovered from the partial amnesia which he suffered at the time he left Loudonville on Feb. 19, according to his brother, W. J. Spreng, Park avenue west.

Dream Comes True.

An unusual phase of his return home was that he was found in Chicago Thursday by Austin C. Rhoads, Mansfield, a close friend of Spreng's brother, after Rhoads had dreamed, en route to that city, that he would find Spreng on Chicago streets.

Rhoads, secretary of the Tappan Stove company, went to Chicago this week on business and while sleeping on the train, said he dreamed that he was walking on one of Chicago's streets and saw the missing man coming toward him.

After registering at a Chicago hotel, Rhoads decided to go for a walk and had gone but a few blocks when he saw the Loudonville man approaching him.

Spreng told him he had been ill for several days before he left home and had worked long hours under pressure during his illness and that he had suddenly decided that he had to "get away from it all" and be by himself for a few days. He said he had gone to Dayton and then to Chicago, from which places he had written his family but had not told them of his plans.

Took Bus Ride To Coast.

Then he took a bus to San Francisco "for the ride" and come right back. Although he suffered occasional memory lapses at no time did he forget his identity, he said.

Rhoads communicated with his brother in Mansfield and late Thursday night placed the Loudonville man on board a train. He arrived here yesterday.

Today members of his family said that his physical condition was much better and that he "was very happy to be home again and with his family."

W. J. Spreng said today that he and his brother, with their wives, would leave tomorrow for a leisurely month's trip through the south, in order to give his brother a complete rest.

PUPILS STRIKE

20 Protest Discrimination In Grades; Parents Get Warning.

CANTON—(AP)—The Tuscarawas township school board took steps today to end a "strike" of 20 pupils at school No. 16, southwest of Massillon. It warned parents of absentee children they faced arrest if the pupils were not back in their classroom Monday.

The board's action followed an inquiry occasioned by parents' protests that the teacher, Miss Virginia Ripple, had been partial to certain children in grading papers.

'Pro' Football Stepping Stone To Better Careers, Club Told

Haven for athletic "bums" and an occasional thug in its early days, professional football now is, for today's college graduate player, a stepping stone to better careers in coaching or business, Art Lewis, assistant coach of the Cleveland Rams told the University club last night.

Speaking before 102 members and guests of the club at the semi-annual stag banquet in the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Lewis outlined the chief differences between football today and the game 15 to 20 years ago.

"Time was when professional football was played largely by men nobody cared particularly about associating with socially or otherwise—they were rough, tough and crude," Lewis said. "Usually, too, they didn't play because they wanted to, but because they couldn't find anything better to do.

"Today, however, it's different. Most of our boys in Cleveland are using the money they make at football for further education in their chosen fields or to set themselves up in their own business. Others use their pro experience to prepare themselves for college coaching.

"Your old time professional football player couldn't hold his own today," Lewis continued, "because he wasn't the finished performer

Richland County Pacing State In Sales Tax Gain

Increase for Past Week and for Year to Date Ahead of Average for All Ohio, Figures Show.

With sales tax receipts for the first seven weeks of 1939 more than $6,000 ahead of collections for the same period last year, Richland county today was well ahead of the state average in the revival of retail business.

The gain for the entire state for that period was $163,240, an average of only $1,700 per county.

Less than half of the state's counties showed gains over the seven-week period, and Richland county's increase was one of the largest in counties of its population class.

Business Spurts.

The county's business showed a sudden spurt for the week ending Feb. 18, the final week for which figures were available, with the sales tax returns for that week nearly $2,000 ahead of collections for the preceding week and $2,700 ahead of the corresponding week of 1938.

For the week ending Feb. 19 this year, sales tax receipts in Richland county totaled $53,642 as against $47,245, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported.

Most of the county gains were in the industrial centers in the northern half of the state, indicating that the manufacturing industry is leading the rural areas in the return to better times.

Richland county's collections of retail taxes is well ahead of last year, with receipts today totaling $135,499. That figure includes $33,911 collected in the last two days, deputy county treasurers said.

'Modernistic' Pope Uses Electric Razor

VATICAN CITY—(AP)—Pope Pius XII, whose modern tendencies rival even those of his predecessor, shaves himself with an electric razor, his barber, Luigi Evangelisti, said today. "I did not believe it at first," said Evangelisti, "but His Eminence showed me and said 'see, my son, it can be done.'"

EUROPE WAITS

Pope's Choice of Secretary of State of Vital Concern.

VATICAN CITY —(U.P.)— Diplomats throughout Europe awaited the appointment of a Secretary of State by Pope Pius XII today, in the belief that they might deduce the course of the new supreme pontiff's world policy.

There was considerable surprise because the Pope did not name his secretary of state yesterday. The delay was taken to mean he had not made up his mind regarding an appointment which was bound to be taken by the diplomatic world as of great significance.

Three had been mentioned for the post. Luigi Cardinal Maglione, prefect of the congregation of the council, a former papal nuncio to Switzerland and then to France, was most prominently mentioned.

BACK CHIEF IN OUSTER FIGHT

Warren Citizens Petition to Have Retirement Ordinance Repealed.

WARREN—(AP)—Petitions asking a referendum vote on a newly-enacted ordinance fixing 60 years as the retirement age for members of the police and fire departments, were in circulation here today. They are sponsored by friends of Police Chief Barney J. Gillen, who would be ousted under the measure.

If 1,234 signatures are obtained, enforcement of the law automatically is restrained until November, when voters would determine its fate.

The 67-year-old police chief says a racketeering syndicate backed the new ordinance to clear the way for open gambling.

POPE HURTS ARM

Pontiff Falls While on Way to Chapel, Paper Says.

ROME —(UP— The newspaper Giornale D'Italia announced today that Pope Pius XII fell and injured his arm yesterday while enroute to the Sistine chapel.

After the ceremony in the Sistine chapel, Giornale said, Dr. Galeazzi examined the pope's arm and found no bones broken. There was only a slight bruise which was expected to disappear in a few days.

ACT TO SAVE JOBS FOR 300 WPA WORKERS

County Plans to Revive Road, Bridge Program, City Maps Sidewalk Improvements.

PROJECT OVER-MANNED

Removal of 300 From Flood Control Work Ordered to Conserve Funds.

City and county officials had taken steps today to provide jobs for approximately 300 WPA workers who will be laid off within a few days unless more projects are launched to give them jobs.

Revival of the county's $1,000,000 road and bridge program and projects totaling $103,995 for the construction of sidewalks and gutters in Mansfield appeared as the likely solution to the threatened unemployment problem.

Available Funds Hit.

Removal of more than 300 men from the city-county flood control project was ordered yesterday by district WPA officials who said the project is so heavily overmanned that the available funds will be consumed before the work is completed.

The project, which was launched several weeks ago in the county's rural areas and extended recently to Mansfield, is employing 561 men, more than half of the 1,050 persons working on WPA projects in the city and county.

The flood control project, established as a stop-gap measure during the winter months, involves expenditure of $131,000, mostly for labor.

Becomes Major Project.

"Instead of a substitute project, the flood control program has developed into the major work relief agency in the county, and unless we do something about it soon, our money will be gone and the job won't be finished," County Engineer Howard C. Sword said.

He pointed out that about 150 men could be shifted from the flood project to the county's road program next week, while Glenn Weller, city WPA engineer, estimated work could be provided for 160 men for seven months on sidewalk and curb and gutter jobs in the city. The city and county pro-

UNIONISTS MEET

700 Answer Martin's Call at Convention In Detroit.

DETROIT —(INS)— Homer Martin's wing of the United Automobile Workers union was to open its convention today with more than 700 delegates in attendance.

The number of locals represented has not yet been announced.

The convention was ushered in quietly, without the political haggling usual in conventions and prevalent at the last UAW convention in Milwaukee.

Aside from Martin, there are few well-known leaders left in the Martin group, most of the prominent UAW officers having joined the CIO-supported wing that, like the Martin group, claims official recognition as the UAW.

Roosevelt Talk Bitterly Assails Dictators' Rule

Tyrannical Governments Won't Be Given Encouragement From America, Congress Told; Re-Incarnation of 'Justice' In 'Dark Ages' Hit In Speech.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt in a challenging defense of American democracy told the world today that the United States would give "no encouragement" to tyrannical forms of government.

Without mentioning the dictatorships or their form of government directly, Mr. Roosevelt reasserted his belief in the stability and endurance of democratic processes against "other forms of government" which "revert to those systems of concentrated self-perpetuating power."

He abhorred the "re-incarnation of the 'justice' of the dark ages" in some parts of the world and gave thanks that the freedoms guaranteed in the bill of rights of the constitution still were sacred in this country.

Speaking before a joint session of congress in celebration of the 150th anniversary of the first meeting of congress, the president left no doubt that his remarks were directed toward those who have criticised his international policy of co-operation with the democracies.

"Today," he said, "with many other democracies, the United States will give no encouragement to the belief that our processes are outworn, or that we will approvingly watch the return of forms of government which for 2,000 years have proved their tyranny and instability alike."

Praises Bill of Rights.

Later, in a tribute to the bill of rights, he asked:

"Shall we by our passiveness, by our silence, by assuming the attitude of the Levite who pulled his skirts together and passed on the other side, lend encouragement to those who today prosecute religion or deny it?"

Mr. Roosevelt replied to his own question with emphasis:

"The answer is 'no,' just as in the days of the first congress of the United States it was 'no'."

The president spoke in the chamber of the house of representatives which was crowded with members of both houses of congress, justices of the supreme court, the cabinet, diplomats and high army and navy officials.

Preceding Mr. Roosevelt were addresses by Speaker of the House William B. Bankhead, president pro tempore of the senate, Key Pittman, and Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes.

Mr. Roosevelt declared there was a "vast chasm between our representative democracy and those reversions to personal rule which have characterized these recent years."

Two Major Differences.

Two major differences between these forms of government, he said, were the democratic principles of "free choice by the body politic," and the freedoms guaranteed our democracy under the bill of rights of the constitution.

"The safety of the system of

REVIEW: Six Years of Power Swinging Roosevelt To 'Right'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt observed the sixth anniversary of his White House reign today with the nation beset by unemployment, farm and business problems, but at peace with the world.

On this anniversary—after six tumultuous years—the president appears to be heading his New Deal toward the right in an effort to restore business confidence and capture that elusive state of economics called prosperity.

During his tenure as president, Mr. Roosevelt has spent almost $50,000,000,000 of the people's money and has executed tremendous social and governmental reforms, only to be confronted with the ever-present problem of unemployment and low farm prices.

In his time as president, the cost of government has trebled, the public debt has soared to the $40,000,000,000 mark, and federal taxes have almost tripled.

The president reaches this sixth anniversary with his own party leaders on Capitol Hill demanding economy as a substitute either for increasing the public debt or imposing new taxes. He also faces demands he speak out now on whether he intends to run for a third term in 1940.

His six years as president have been filled with surprises. The climax probably was his unexpected attempt to enlarge the supreme court—a bill branded by its foes as the "court packing scheme." He lost that fight to the senate, but he won control of the court through a death and three retirements, so that now it has a 5 to 3

CONGRESS: Bankhead Hints America Has Been Too Tolerant

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Speaker Bankhead told a joint session of the house and senate today that "we may have been too tolerant" of recent activities of "sinister influences and minorities" at work in the United States.

Participating in a celebration marking the 150th anniversary of the first American congress, the house leader declared:

"There are evidences of certain sinister influences and minorities now seeking to sap and mine the pillars of this temple of freedom.

"We may have been too generous in our hospitality to them. We may have been too tolerant of some of their recent manifestations of subversive treachery.

"We have sought with rather grim patience to respect the guarantee of freedom of speech; but it may be only fair to admonish all such groups that they take counsel of their prudence lest by going one step too far, it will be too late to escape the wrath and indignation of all real Americans."

Senator Pittman (D., Nev.) described the difficulties which beset the first meeting of congress in New York in 1789, relating how on the official opening date, March 4, only a handful of members showed up and a quorum did not report until April 21.

This government, he said, "has brought a greater degree of liberty, prosperity and happiness to our people than are enjoyed anywhere else in the world—a government that is at peace with the world and respected by the world."

Response To Encyclopedia Set Offer Enthuses Milk Dealers

Pasteurized milk dealers of Mansfield were enthused today at the reception which the general public has given to their offer of a gift set of the 15-volume Standard American encyclopedia in exchange for milk caps and the cost of handling the set.

Although the office of the encyclopedia exchange on the second floor of The News-Journal building opened only Wednesday, more than 50 sets of the encyclopedia had been contracted for and the first volumes taken out.

The books are so attractive in appearance and so extensive in subject matter covered that every one who examines them is instantly "sold."

The entire set may be obtained, one at a time, upon presentation of 10 caps from quart bottles of pasteurized milk from dairies of any of the pasteurized association, together with 49 cents for the regular volumes. The deluxe sets are slightly higher.

The plan was worked out by the milk dealers on the basis that education is as important to human happiness as milk is important to good health, and that the two are definitely related.

The encyclopedia is an education in itself and provides a permanent and complete reference library for the home or office.

LEADERS SEEK TO HALT FOES' LONG DEBATE

$499,000,000 Appropriation Gets Speedy O. K. In House; Goes to Upper Chamber.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — The speed with which the house approved the $499,987,000 army appropriation bill heightened the hopes of administration leaders today that the program for increased armaments would sweep through the senate shortly despite the furious debate it has provoked there.

Without a record vote or a single amendment, the huge appropriation was passed by the house.

Senatorial disagreement over the army expansion bill centered, meanwhile, on whether 6,000 or 5,500 planes should be set as a limit for the air corps. There appeared little opposition to other parts of this measure, previously passed by the house, which authorizes the increased army outlays proposed by the president but leaves their financing to separate appropriation bills.

Senator Borah (R-Ida) told reporters he believed the senate could demonstrate to the world that it was "not excited and not afraid" if it fixed the maximum air corps strength at 5,500, as approved by the house.

Holds It 'Good Policy.'

On the other hand, Senator Lee (D-Okla) supporting the senate military committee's amendment to raise the limit to 6,000 said he believed it would be good psychology, from a world standpoint, to approve the higher figure.

Borah, who previously had criticized the "jitters" which he said accompanied submission of the administration's program said that a senate reduction in the prospective number of planes would demonstrate a calm attitude toward defenses that should be reflected in other parts of the world.

Senator Clark (D-Mo) told the senate yesterday he thought the psychology of fear had played an important part in bringing about the Munich conference in Europe last year.

He said Col. Charles A. Lindbergh had been permitted to fly over German airplane factories and had made a report to Prime Minister Chamberlain of England which "scared" Chamberlain into arranging the Munich conference.

"Then," Clark shouted, shipping off his glasses, "Lindbergh was decorated by the German government.

"Whether the decoration was for giving the facts to Great Britain or for helping Germany carry out a bluff, nobody knows."

Majority leader Barkley of Kentucky said he hoped the senate could conclude consideration of the authorization bill Monday.

The appropriation measure, largest army supply bill since 1922, carries the first funds for the proposed $300,000,000 air corps expansion. It has yet to be considered by the senate.

today's college player is. What's more, he didn't train nearly so well. He couldn't possibly have played 60 minutes of today's fast-moving game."

The Rams coach noted a tendency away from the use of big-name players and accounted for it by the fact that in his opinion, most stars are overrated. In conclusion he pointed out that professional football was just like a business in its train procedures.

"The player learns the rudiments in high school and in college he polishes off the rough edges. But when he gets in pro football, he's on his own and he's got to be able to take care of himself or suffer."

At a preliminary business session, club members elected Lloyd Brown, Charles King Carter and Ned Brooks to directorships, replacing George Gaalaas, Harold Bruce and Norman Wolfe. William F. Black was in charge of arrangements for the meeting and introduced Lewis. Norman Wolfe, club president, presided.

Sound pictures of last year's big collegiate games, shown by Harry DeLaney, preceded the talk, and a social meeting followed. Plans for the club's educational program also were discussed.

ANSWER PENNSY

County, Township Seek to Have Railroad Repair Bridge.

An action to require the Pennsylvania Railroad company to repair a bridge in Springfield township and open it to traffic had been filed in common pleas court today by Richland county commissioners and Springfield township trustees.

The county and township officials, who had been named defendants in a similar suit filed by the railroad company, brought their action in a cross-petition and answer to the company's suit.

In their cross-petition, the officials assert that the railroad company removed certain braces and supports from the overhead bridge and placed barriers at the approaches to prevent traffic from using it. The company contended that the bridge was closed because it was unsafe.

The railroad company, county, and township deny responsibility for repair of the bridge which spans the Pennsylvania tracks on the Stiving road northwest of Mansfield. The bridge was built 49 years ago.

HIGHLIGHTS OF ROOSEVELT'S CONGRESS ANNIVERSARY TALK

(By Associated Press)

Here are some sentences from President Roosevelt's address commemorating the 150th anniversary of the first session of congress:

Today, with many other democracies, the United States will give no encouragement to the belief that our processes are outworn, or that we will approvingly watch the return of forms of government which for two thousand years have proved their tyranny and their instability alike.

It is in the spirit of our system that our elections are positive in their mandate, rather than passive in their acquiescence.

In that bill of rights lies another vast chasm between our representative democracy and those reversions to personal rule which have characterized these recent years.

Representative democracy will never tolerate suppression of true news at the behest of government.

Where democracy is snuffed out there, too, the right to worship God in one's own way in circumscribed or abrogated.

Our fathers rightly believed that this government which they set up would seek as a whole to act as a whole for the good governing of the nation.

A Farmer's Diary

Beneath the Snow.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALL through the months of January and February we have had snows, intermittently. In fact for several years it has not lain so long upon the soil. In the early part of this season, when the ground was bare, the frost had formed great ice needles, broad and deep in the upper surface. But when the snow came a great change took place. Underneath this soft, protecting blanket, this heavy top soil slowly thawed, and the deeper icy fingers were more slowly melted, until the entire surface for a depth of a foot or more, was left loose and porous, with myriad open spaces.

When warm days come the deluge of melting snow, and the rain that follows will fill these spaces to overflowing, and even soak tardily through the damp moist subsoil. The sleeping angleworms will gasp and sputter for air and hurriedly come to the world above—but not to the same one they left three months ago. The grubs will emerge from their winter quarters, and the long fleshy tap roots of the mullein, the thistle and the sweet clover will decay and leave large canals to serve as reservoirs for water storage.

Yesterday, where the snow had left, I sank ankle deep into the moistened soil. I rolled up my coat and shirt sleeves and pushed one hand down clear to the elbow. Although the ground was cold and wet, it had a pleasant feel, one of life, hope and sustenance.

My hand came out with a sucking, muddy sound, and dripped heavy drops reeking with odors of the land. Upon my hands were parts of decaying life more than I could ever guess, but the good, friendly earth is the melting pot, and will bring forth life again.

Those splendid snows have rejuvenated the fields and roadsides. Where the deepest drifts had vanished, or where the storms had piled the hollows full, I saw the grass was showing a vigorous green, and the surface soil had settled well. This fleecy blanket has kept the ever-leaching nitrogen back in the soil. Last fall the wheat looked thin and spotted, over all the land. Now it peeps from snow-bordered fields, green and beautiful, a delightful emerald patch upon the varied landscape.

Lucas Club Lone County Contender In Carey Play

Cubs Face Fostoria St. Wendelin In Tourney Today; Butler Eliminated By Host Team, 43-26.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THERE is only one quintet left today to carry Richland county's hopes in the quarter-finals of the district Class B tournament at Carey.

It is Lucas, which returns to the battle front against Fostoria St. Wendelin in the second tussle at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

Butler, the other county club, attempted to advance last night, but had the misfortune of running into a canny Carey high combine and found itself on the short end of a 43 to 26 count when hostilities ceased.

If Coach Alfred Axe's towering athletes dispose of St. Wendelin, they will meet the winner of the Arcadia-Salem affair, which opens the program at Carey high, tonight, in the semi-finals, Friday, March 10.

Fail to Hold Lead.

Mentor Bob Burgett's Bulldogs, playing without the services of Kenny Miller, jumped into the lead in the early minutes of the contest. But they found it impossible to stop the brilliant shooting of Harold Krout, Carey's clever pivot man.

Krout, whom Coach Hayden Fouts has been grooming for the center post for two seasons, broke into the spotlight by collecting 23 points to spark his team's attack.

The lanky center, who went out of the game in the last period on personals, had little trouble in locating the basket and connected from almost every point in the front court.

Carey also demonstrated a nifty stalling game and for three minutes in the final frame controlled the ball with some spectacular passing.

The Bulldogs, with Jack Wilson back in the lineup, gained a 4 to 0 advantage in the first period, but Krout, aided by Thomas Krom, began dumping in goals and Carey was soon in command of the situation.

Once Carey gained the lead, Butler was unable to overcome the advantage. The Bulldogs cut the winners' lead down to three points midway in the second stanza, and that was the closest they came to pulling up with Carey.

Lead 21-15 at Half.

Carey led 14 to 8 in the opening chapter, 21 to 15 at the rest period, and 33 to 23 going into the final quarter.

Charles Heck followed Krout in the scoring column with 12 points, while Harold Hall paced the Bulldogs with seven.

Simpson Loses In Massillon

Beaten In First Round of Junior High Tourney.

Coach Bob DeHaven's John Simpson Junior high courtiers lost their opening game in the Junior High Invitational tournament at Massillon last night by bowing to Longfellow, 26 to 13.

The Simpson outfit went into the second half sporting a 9 to 3 advantage, but was unable to halt the thrilling final period rally by Longfellow.

Simpson, playing without the services of Kenneth Krupp, whitewashed its rival in the opening frame, but had trouble in locating the basket in the rest of the way.

The two teams raced into the fourth quarter with the score knotted at 11-all, and then Longfellow, led by Armour, broke loose to outscore the Simpson club, 15 to 4, and ice the game. John Simpson was leading 7 to 0 at the end of the initial period.

Armour set the scoring pace with eight points, while Albert Hageer and Romano collected six markers apiece for the losers. Hager, incidentally, was the only Simpson cager to tally more than one goal.

PLAY in the Class A district basketball tournament was to continue in Sandusky tonight with the Mansfield high school hoopsters still in the running.

Still second choices in the betting, Coach Russ Murphy's Tygers were to oppose Shelby in their quarter-final tussle at 7:15 o'clock tonight.

Routs Port Clinton.

Mansfield's basketeers opened their defense of the title in the district eliminations last night by outpointing Port Clinton, 33 to 20, in the most decisive triumph registered in the opening round of the tournament.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

A CHOICE bit of American folklore credits the woodchuck or groundhog with being a weather foreteller, by whether or not he sees his shadow on February the second. The fact of the matter is, woodchucks do not see daylight until late March or early April when their winter hibernation ends. On rare occasions they come out late in February for long nocturnal journeys across the snow. The reason for these meanderings are not known, but they appear to be searching for food. Whether they are out for a purpose, or merely sleepwalking is not certain, but we may be sure they are not qualifying as weather prophets, according to the American Wildlife Institute.

Do you know: That there are 163 kinds of fish in Ohio? . . . 358 kinds of birds? . . . 66 different mammals? . . . 14 kinds of frogs and toads? . . . 9 types of turtles? . . . 20 species of lizards and salamanders? . . . and 22 kinds of snakes?

Legal size limits are not much use, unless the fish that are thrown back survive the experience. Most fishermen know that when the mucous covering that waterproofs a fish is broken by handling, fungus growth often appears and eventually kills the fish. All godo fishermen wet the hands good fishermen wet the hands derly as possible.

From the high of 704 arrests and convictions for game law infractions in November, while the open hunting season was on, the arrests dropped to 104 in December, and 91 in January, Conservation Commissioner Don Waters reports. The arrests decline in numbers in closed seasons and will be few for the next three months. Spring fishing will bring another bunch of offenders, reaching its height in June. In September and October the squirrel season produces an increase in arrests of over zealous nimrods with a flair for squirrel and water fowl pursuit, fair or foul.

The black crow is conceded to be by far the most destructive bird in Ohio, and all hands are turned against it, with few to plead its cause as there are for owls or hawks. The crow's destructiveness does not include only the damage it does to other birds and their nests, but touches the farmers' crops, and even carries diseases to domestic animals, authorities say. A Kentucky Conservation Division press release points out that from February 15th to March 15th is the time to crusade against crows before the nesting season begins. Gun clubs, sportsmen's organizations and individuals are urged to co-operate in the drive against the crow, by Conservation Division officials.

Your bamboo rods should be loked over carefully, before fishing season opens, to make sure that the heat in the house during the winter has not dried them out and loosened the ferrules. To find loose ferrules, put the rod together and flex it a few times. If you detect a looseness somewhere, it can be located by holding each ferrule separately and shaking rod section. And if you need new ferrules, cement, new guides, tips, winding silk, etc., you'll find complete selections at Yuncker's.

There is something about the slender, symmetrical beauty and action of a really fine fly rod that gives a man a deep and satisfying pleasure. This is especially true of the celebrated Granger Fly Rods, now handled by Yuncker Bros. For years discriminating fly fishermen have proven Granger's quality, skillful handiwork, and better materials by actual fishing in all sorts of waters, and the Granger has been universally acclaimed "the finest" by hundreds of veteran fishermen. Granger fly rods are available in various models, sizes and weights, and in a price range to fit most every purse.

Jap Holds Mephisto To Draw

1,200 Pack Armory to See Mildred Burke Win In Straight Falls.

THE Great Mephisto has been stopped in a Mansfield ring at last. The world's light-heavyweight champion was not defeated, but he failed to get anything more than a draw out of his imbroglio with Kimon Kudo, Japanese challenger. The draw saved his title.

With 1,200 patrons—the largest crowd ever to witness a wrestling show in the city—looking on, Mephisto and Kudo staged what was one of the most spectacular matches witnessed in the Armory ring.

Split Two Falls.

They tussled 90 minutes without either grappler showing an advantage. Each won a fall, Mephisto taking the first.

Both stood up well under the punishment, and, apparently, could have extended their battle many more minutes had the clock not called a halt.

No rough tactics were employed in the match by the two clever light-heavyweights. They used all of the weapons at their command, but only twice were they effective.

The Jap went into the match handicapped by a bad leg, injured in his last appearance against Mephisto several weeks ago, but he held his own in the gruelling battle.

The champion, who tipped the scales at 175, took the first fall in 49:45 minutes, aggravating the Jap's old leg injury with a pry-bar tie hold. A series of "flying mares," body slams and an arm strangle squared the match for Kudo in 11:29 minutes.

Both wrestled cautiously in the remaining minutes of the match.

In a bloody semi-final match, Mildred Burke, claimant to the women's lightweight title, won in straight falls from Babe Meyers, St. Paul challenger.

The capacity crowd also enjoyed this tussle, but the more-experienced Mildred held the edge throughout.

Miss Burke took the first match in 9:40 minutes with a body slam and smother, and took the second with a reverse crabhold in 3:25.

Suffers Cut Lip.

The challenger was the aggressor, but slowed down before the last deciding fall when she suffered a badly cut lip from which the blood literally poured.

Referee Clarence Miller of Newark awarded the decision to Steve Bedynas of Albany over Sailor Curly of Glouster, Mass., at the conclusion of an actionless curtain raiser.—By Carl Graham.

MOOSE BOWL DETROIT

Three men's and two women's bowling teams of the Moose lodge will bowl in special matches against lodge teams in Detroit tonight.

Mr. Pine Has Met 'Em All

Boxer on Tuesday's Card Also Fought Champs.

Lloyd Pine, Akron featherweight, who will appear on Fred Nolan's Quality club fistic card in the Armory Tuesday night, has fought 'em all.

About the busiest fighter in Ohio today, Pine who will meet Jose Fernandez of Fairmont, W. Va., in one of the three 10-round bouts on Tuesday's show, has fought in virtually very state in the union.

Included among his foes were a couple of champions, Harry Jeffra and Pete Sarron. He beat Sarron, by the way.

Aong other topnotchers Joe Basco's little scrapper has fought are Tony Chavez, Everett Rightmire, Sammy Angott, Paul Lee and Roger Bernard.

While Fernandez is a stranger around these parts, he comes well recommended. One of his victims was Johnny Urson of Detroit, who outpointed Pine in his last appearance in a Mansfield ring.

In the other 10-round bouts on Tuesday's card, Willie Russell of Columbus, state lightweight champ, meets Cleo McNeil of Akron, and Penna Ranzola of Las Vegas, Mex., tackles Jimmy Brown, Canton middleweight.

Tickets for the show were placed on sale last night at Hunt's news depot and Ringside Cafe. Prices are $1, ringside; 75 cents, general admission; 50 cents, women, and 25 cents, children.

Pro Football Out of Question for Mansfield

PROBABILITY that Mansfield would have a professional football team this fall composed of players owned by the Cleveland Rams or any other National Professional Football league club, is highly remote, Art Lewis, assistant coach of the Rams, said in an interview last night.

Admitting that there had been talk of farming out some of the Rams' talent picked up in the mid-winter draft meeting of college stars, to pro clubs in Mansfield and neighboring Ohio cities, Lewis stated that so far no plans had been made.

Chief difficulty in setting up a farm system similar to that used in organized baseball is securing adequate financial backing for the individual farm clubs. Lewis pointed out. A team composed of All-Americans and other stars comes high—higher than most backers would want to pay in the smaller cities, he asserted.

"It isn't that Mansfield itself wouldn't turn out to see one of our farm teams down here play," Lewis asserted, "the question is, just who would the team play?"

"Supposing we sent eight or ten of our most likely prospects down here. The team would over-balance most of the neighboring teams as they're now set up. We'd soon lose interest of the fans and take a loss financially.

"Of course, if we could secure similar teams for towns like Canton, Massillon, Columbus, Toledo and Springfield we might have something but I'm afraid that day is pretty far away," he continued.

Lewis was here to speak at the semi-annual University club stag at the Mansfield-Leland hotel and left immediately after for Athens and Ohio University, his alma mater, where he was to be one of the guests of honor at the Junior Prom.

Tygers, Whippets Collide Tonight

night's victory, but Bellevue remains the ruling favorite, despite the fact that Mansfield handed the Sailors their worst whipping of the season.

Four games are on the schedule tonight, with a tiff between Tiffin Junior Order and Willard preceding the Mansfield-Shelby setto at 6 p. m. Fremont, victor over Sandusky in another first round game last night, is scheduled to engage Tiffin Columbian at 8:30, with the highly-favored Bellevue Redmen meeting Ashland in the final contest.

Shelby came through with a spectacular 36 to 34 victory over a favored Norwalk quintet in the opening game last night, and although the Whippets have dropped two tilts to the Tygers so far this season, Murphy is concerned about the Whippets

However, if the Tygers continue to play the same type of defensive ball they displayed against Port Clinton they will be difficult to beat.

Throttle Sailors' Attack.

The Tygers were given a real scare by the Sailors, but they throttled the vaunted Port Clinton attack, and that was the major factor in their triumph.

Statistics show how stingy the Tygers were on the defense. Not a single field goal was permitted the Sailors in the first half until only 48 seconds of play remained. In all, the Tygers' foe obtained only five baskets during the entire game.

Had it not been for their accuracy at the foul line, the Sailors would have been beaten worse They sank 10 out of 11 free throws to keep themselves in the ball game for three periods

The conversion of four fouls enabled Port Clinton to tie the Tygers 4-all at the completion of the first period. The half ended in a 9 to 9 deadlock

The score was tied three times in the third period before the Tygers were able to obtain a fairly comfortable lead. The Tygers held a 20 to 15 advantage going into the final period.

Mansfield made a complete rout of the affair in the fourth quarter, scoring 13 points to five.

The Tygers went into their celebrated stall in the early minutes of the final stanza, and the two most important cogs in the Port Clinton machine, Woodrick and Bolte, fouled out in their attempt to break up the Mansfield passing attack.

Port Clinton committed nearly half of their 17 fouls in the final minutes as it deliberately fouled the Tygers in an attempt to bust up the stalling game.

Their rough tactics merely enabled the Tygers to extend their margin of victory.

Sailors Bewildered.

Apparently, not accustomed to the slow attack employed by the Tygers, Port Clinton was bewildered from the start, and the Sailors never would have been in the ball game had it not been for their ability to part the netting from the foul stripe.

Port Clinton also handled the ball slowly, and the Tygers "stole" the leather frequently

The Sailors, probably the best balanced team in the tournament physically, held a height advantage, but the Tygers got more than their share of rebounds on both the offense and defense to control the play during the greater part of the time.

All of the Tygers turned in commendable performances, with Tommy Scott leading the scoring with 11 points.

Jake Lyons was ousted from the game early in the fourth period on personals, but Don Rose filled his post in splendid fashion.

Whippets Refuse To Admit Defeat.

SHELBY'S WHIPPETS won a ball game last night because they never knew when to admit defeat.

Norwalk, beaten 36 to 34 in an overtime period, played amateurish ball, and the Whippets deserved to win.

In the third period, for instance, Norwalk held several comfortable leads, but instead of attempting to protect their advantages, it tossed the ball wildly as it tried to lengthen its lead

The Norwalk players' failure to count on the lead they accumulated in the third period cost them the victory.

Coach Arlo Willet's men trailed 8 to 7 at the end of the first period, 20 to 17 at the half, and 31 to 24 going into the final quarter. A seven-point lead is usually regarded as safe, but it was not in this instance.

Limiting Norwalk to a basket and a free throw in the final period, the Whippets tied the score before the end of play to send the game into the overtime.

With only about a minute to go, Bob Lehman reduced Norwalk's advantage to two points. The timekeeper had his finger on the trigger when Bob Oxter sank a throw from out court to knot the count.

The overtime had gone about a minute and a half when Frank Benham took a pass, poised in the corner of the court and parted the strings with a perfect shot to win the game.

Sorteado, Kayak II Santa Anita Favorites

SANTA ANITA PARK, Arcadia, Cal.—(U.P.)—The gold rush of '49 seemed in retrospect just a piker parade today as 70,000 citizens swarmed over this palatial racing plant to watch 18 horses run a mile and a quarter for the $100,000 prize of the Santa Anita handicap.

The field of 18 was surprisingly large but almost perfectly balanced. The great Seabiscuit, a prohibitive future book choice until he broke down two weeks ago, was just another horse in his stable while the public and the experts alike turned to his stablemates, the Charles S. # SNEAD DEFEATS PICARD IN FLORIDA PLAY-OFF

ST PETERSBURG, Fla. —(U.P.)—Sammy Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., today banked $700 first place money from the St. Petersburg open golf championship and hoped his bad fortunes on the winter golfing trail had turned for the better.

The hard-hitting West Virginian took his first major winter title by defeating Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., in a 25-hole playoff Friday. They tied at 207, nine under par, in the regular 54-hole play and shot 96's, three under par, for the first 18 of the playoffs.

BLAMES POOR SHOWING ON STAGE FRIGHT

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Jack Dempsey, who has been searching for a "white hope" ever since Joe Louis rose to power, blamed the pathetic showing of his latest find, Wild Bill Boyd, on poor physical condition and stage fright today.

THEATERS

McCarthy-Bergen-Fields.

A COMBINATION that is hard to beat in the entertainment world, whether it's pictures or radio, comes to the Madison with the midnight show tonight. Charlie McCarthy, Edgar Bergen and W. C. Fields are starred in "You Can't Cheat An Honest Man." Fields vs. McCarthy was, as you may remember, one of the feuds of the century and it's continued in their new film Put Charlie has competition, for Mortimer Snerd, Bergen's newest dummy, makes his appearance Princess Baba, who married a wrestler or something, Constance Moore and Mary Forbes are supporting players Runs through Tuesday.

"Huckleberry Finn."

Mickey Rooney plays a typical American boy of the muddle west in "Huckleberry Finn," a character that is ageless and therefore as typical of boys today as he was of the Civil war period in which he lived. The Negro actor Rex Ingram, plays Jim, the run-away slave, and Walter Connolly and William Frawley and the "King" and the "Duke," gamblers and shysters The Mark Twain classic follows the fortunes of the boy and the slave who in the end achieve that which they both wanted. The film is the Ohio theater attraction and opened an engagement there today.

"Arkansas Traveler."

Bob Burns as "The Arkansas Traveler," will entertain patrons at the Ritz Sunday, Monday and Tuesday Burns goes back to his "native land" for the locale of his latest film, portraying a happy-go-lucky itinerant printer who stops long enough in his wanderings to help a lady in distress. He puts the newspaper on its feet, fights the owner's battles and leaves a young couple happier for his stay in the town. Jean Parker, John Beal, and Fay Bainter head a large supporting cast. "There's Always A Woman," with Melvyn Douglas and Joan Blondell adds hilarity to the Ritz bill.

"Blondie."

Striking a popular fancy with its first release is "Blondie," which introduces the characters of the newspaper cartoon strip to motion picture audiences. A series of films will revolve around Blondie, her husband Dagwood, and her baby, Dumpling. Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms in these roles bid fair to become one of the most popular series on the screen. "Blondie" is a feature at the Park for the first three days of the week, with "I Am A Criminal" as a secondary attraction.

"Nancy Drew—Reporter."

The series pictures grow more popular as the months go on, so that now it is impossible to attend a theater regularly and miss one. The Majestic is also offering one of a popular series, "Nancy Drew—Reporter," which is the second episode in a series, each story independent of the other. Bonita Granville, juvenile star, plays Nancy, and finds plenty of exciting adventure. A Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy comedy, "Swiss Miss," revolving around the two comics in a Swiss mountain resort, will also be shown.

LIST EXTENDS GAINS IN BRIEF STOCK SESSION

Forecasts Encouraging For Building Material Shares; Store Sales Drop.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks resumed the upward tilt in today's market proceedings.

At an active opening fractional gainers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Westinghouse, Douglas Aircraf, Anaconda, Youngstown Sheet and U. S. Rubber.

Those watching building material stocks noted forecasts in trade circles that more than the usual seasonal expansion of 50 per cent in the volume of residential construction between the first and second quarters of the year might be realized in coming months.

Not so cheering was the Federal Resurve summary of department store sales for the week ended Feb. 25, showing a drop of 5 per cent from the comparable week last year.

'TYRANNY' IN EUROPE SCORED

Roosevelt Speech Says U. S. Won't Encourage Rule of Dictatorships.

representative democracy," he said, "is in the last analysis based on two essentials: First, that at frequent periods the voters must choose a new congress and a new president, and second, that this choice must be made freely.

"That after all is the greatest difference between what we know as democracy, and those other forms of government which, though they seem new to us, are essentially old—for they revert to those systems of concentrated self perpetuating power against which the representative democratic system was successfully launched several centuries ago."

Mr. Roosevelt said that "direct control . . . by a free electorate" has made it impossible for a democracy to "long remain in the hands of those who seek personal aggrandizement for selfish ends, whether they act as individuals, as classes or as groups."

'Nations Envy Us.'

"Many other nations," he added, "envy us the enthusiasm, the attacks, the wild over-statements, the falsehood intermingled gayly with the truth that marks our general elections, because they are promptly followed by acquiescence in the result and a return to calmer waters as soon as the ballots are counted."

He asked whether the American people ever stop to compare with "blessed right" of jury trial "with some processes of trial and publishment which of late have re-incarnated the 'justice' of the dark ages?"

Referring to the taking of private property without due compensation, the president questioned whether we would "willingly abandon our security against that in the face of the events of recent years?"

Of other guarantees of those first 10 amendments, he said:

"The right to be safe against unwarrantable searches and seizures—read your newspapers and rejoice that our firesides and our households are safe.

"Freedom to assemble and petition the congress for a redress of grievances—the mail and the telegraph bring daily proof to every senator and every representative that that right is at the height of an unrestrained popularity . . .

"Freedom of religion— . . . where democracy is snuffed out there, too, the right to worship God is one's own way is discumscribed or abrogated.

Of freedom of the press, he said representative democracy "will never tolerate suppression of true news at the behest of government." He asserted that "no sensible man or woman believes that it (freedom of press) has been curtailed or threatened or that it should be."

Asserting that the freedom of religion "goes back to the origin of representative government," he concluded:

'Other Freedoms.'

"Not for freedom or religion alone does this nation contend by every peaceful means. We believe in the other freedoms of the bill of rights, the other freedoms that are inherent in the right of free choice by free men and women. That means democracy to us under the constitution, not democracy by direct action of the mob; but democracy exercised by representatives chosen by the people themselves. . . .

"Our fathers rightly believed that this government which they set up would seek as a whole to act as a whole for the good governing of the nation. It is in the same spirit that we are met here, today, 150 years later, to carry on their task. May God continue to guide our steps."

County Plans to Revive WPA Road, Bridge Program, City Maps Walk Improvements.

jects were virtually suspended last fall because of cold weather.

City officials had obtained government approval today of their projects and they hoped to start work on them by March 23. Similar projects were operated in the city with WPA co-operation for the past two years.

Under the revived city projects, $71,512 would be spent for new sidewalks and $32,483 for curbs and gutters. The federal government would provide $64,360 for the work and the city and property owners benefitted by the projects would finance the rest, or approximately $40,000.

A sanitary sewer construction project in Woodland will be completed about March 20, and a number of men from it will be laid off unless the new projects are opened this month, it was said.

H. S. Hursh, engineer on the flood control project, said 300 men are employed on the Possum run ditch south of the city where the ditch is being dredged over a seven-mile area.

The other 261 men on the flood project are constructing retaining walls along Ritter's Run in the eastern section of the city, dredging Rocky Fork creek near the Armory, and constructing a storm sewer in Lincoln Heights.

Capital Observers Believe New Views Decided Upon to Spur Recovery.

New Deal majority, with the president about to name another friendly justice.

He lost another fight, this time to the house, on his plan to reorganize the administrative branch of the government. He asked congress for broad powers which were declared by critics to give him "dictatorial" powers.

Early in his administration the senate, even with its overwhelming Democratic majority, rejected a presidential proposal to place the United States in the World Court, but that was an issue the senate previously had showed its temper on when, after the World war, it had refused to sanction United States entry into the League of Nations.

Aside from that, in the international field Mr. Roosevelt has maintained American neutrality while war flared on every other continent. He invoked a "good neighbor" policy of approachment with South and Central America. He initiated reciprocal trade treaties with many nations, to rebuild America's foreign commerce, topped by the new British pact.

Ever sympathetic toward the world's other democracies, the president recently provoked a congressional controversy by extending direct aid to Britain and France in their mad re-armament race against the totalitarian states. At the same time, he was calling on congress for a great aerial re-armament program for America. Earlier, he sponsored a naval re-armament program, designed to give the United States the greatest navy on the seven seas.

The business, unemployment and labor problems that beset his administration now, are intermingled.

On the business front, he gave America the NRA, only to have it outlawed by the supreme court. Before that he stabilized the banking situation, partially by adopting the Republican plan for guaranteeing bank deposits. After the fall of NRA, he used the Republican-created reconstruction finance corporation to extend financial aid to industry. Recently, he initiated a probe of monopoly, with a declared purpose of strengthening anti-trust laws and increasing competition within business.

As for Wall Street, the president took over a Republican inquiry into the operations of "frenzied finance." Out of that grew the securities exchange commission, with vast powers over the stock markets and the flotation of securities. This protected the public against stock frauds.

victs, or face ouster charges. After Sherwood indicated that if the 66-year-old warden, who got the position in a Davey-instigated shakeup four years ago, did not resign charges would be filed with the civil service commission, Woodard asserted he was not guilty of anything and would fight for his job.

Suspended besides Woodard were two guards, including his son, James, jr., and Deputy Warden William J. Walker. Sherwood, who launched the investigation the day after Republican Gov John W. Bricker took office Jan. 9, said the suspensions were for "disciplinary purposes."

Although Woodard is a Democrat like former Governor Davey, Sherwood said his action was not motivated by "politics."

Armine declined to discuss just what information concerning gambling and liquor and narcotic traffic had been uncovered, but there were reliable reports that convicts with money could purchase liquor inside the walls by the pint bottle; that dice games and poker games were conducted among convicts and that narcotics were peddled on a smaller scale.

All Highway Records?

Concerning the burned records, there were reports that they might have been from the highway department. When Bricker's administration took office Highway Director Robert S. Beightler reported that a large number of records had been destroyed. Some records also had been reported missing from the welfare department.

Armine said that the investigation was being conducted to gather evidence to support civil service charges.

The penitentiary and its administration has been under fire frequently from both Republican and Democratic administrations.

Armine announced today that all information coming out of the prison must pass through him. He also declared that "rigid discipline" had been established.

"Because of favoritism to some convicts and lack of discipline, a critical condition existed here," Armine declared. "Rigid discipline has been established, everyone is being treated fairly whether or not he has influential friends, and all is quiet."

FORMER HEAD OF REICHSBANK GETS NEW JOB

Dictator Wants Financial 'Wizard' to Solve Problem Of Frozen Credits.

(By United Press)

BERLIN — Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, the financial "wizard" recently ousted as head of the Reichsbank, was reported in reliable quarters today to have been instructed by Adolf Hitler to take command of a great campaign to revive foreign trade.

Coincident with this report, Field Marshal Hermann Goering, Hitler's right hand man, went to Italy for a visit of several weeks during which he was expected to hold important conferences with Premier Benito Mussolini and other Italian leaders.

Goering was expected particularly to discuss Italy's "aspirations" at France's expense and the future relations of Germany and Italy with nationalist Spain.

Of World Importance.

Schacht's reported assignment was regarded in well informed quarters as even more important, however, and of considerable significance to all countries which strive for world trade.

It was said that Hitler had personally given Schacht instructions to:

1—Seek new markets for German goods abroad to provide additional foreign exchange.

2—Attempt to arrange a settlement of the situation created by frozen debits and credits under the Nazi economic system.

This plan, as reported by trustworthy German sources, was of added interest because of the opening of a new British campaign to improve trade relations with north European nations and with Soviet Russia. In recent months economic factors have become more closely intertwined than ever with the political phases of Europe's struggle between democracies and dictatorships until trade has become a potent weapon of diplomacy.

It was understood that Schacht would take the initiative within the next few weeks with a number of trips to European nations, particularly Rumania, where recent British and French economic moves in a territory which Berlin regards as without the Nazi orbit, has caused misgivings here. German counter-moves have started with a trip by Dr. Helmuth Wohlthat to Rumania to negotiate for an increase of oil exports to Germany.

Gable's Wife To Charge Desertion In Divorce Suit

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — (UP) — Mrs. Ria Gable, second wife of movie lover Clark Gable, will file a divorce suit today and it was expected to charge that he deserted her three years ago, about the time he began paying court to blond Carole Lombard.

Frank McNamee, jr., her lawyer, said the suit would be heard Monday or Tuesday and the divorce be granted shortly thereafter. He indicated that the desertion charge would be used rather than the usual Nevada grounds of extreme cruelty.

His friends in Hollywood expect Gable to announce his intentions to wed Miss Lombard, who is 29, soon after the divorce.

Mrs. Gable, who is 48, ten years older than Gable, becomes a citizen of the state today after having spent the required six weeks in this divorce mecca.

They separated three years ago. Immediately the now famous Gable-Lombard romance began. Recently Gable, chagrined because his wife refused to free him, announced publicly that he desired a divorce. A short time later he gave her a reputed $300,000 in cash and property.

There never was any question about the outcome of their district tournament basketball game with Port Clinton in Sandusky last night as far as the Tygers of Mansfield high were concerned. They figured a team could have just so much tough luck, and they thought they had their share of it before the game. The car carrying half of the squad had two blowouts on the trip, each one coming on a different wheel, with the second at the city limits of Sandusky. Mansfield fans following the team transported the players from there to the gymnasium just in time to get them into their togs. Mansfield won, 33 to 20.

$2,355 Foreclosure Suit Filed By Treasurer Kolb.

Sale of a proposed park site in Lincoln Heights for $2,355 in delinquent taxes is sought in a foreclosure suit filed today in common pleas court by County Treasurer John E. Kolb.

The property, which comprises 29 vacant lots, was given to the Madison township trustees 12 years ago to be used for a park. The project never materialized, however, and taxes have been unpaid since then.

The trustees and John D. Constance and Anton Reiser, who claim an interest in the lots, were named defendants in the action.

In three other foreclosure suits involving properties in Mansfield and Mifflin township, the county asks judgments for $640 in delinquent taxes and penalties.

One of the actions names Frank S. Aten as defendant and asks $376 in delinquencies on a lot in Mansfield. Another suit requests $175 in taxes on a Mansfield property owned by the heirs of E. E. and Violet Houff.

The other action, involving 10 acres in Mifflin township, is against Lettie D. Arter and others and asks $89 in back taxes.

1,800 SURE OF TEMPORARY JOB

Study Possibility New UCC Legislation Abolishes All Job Insurance Posts.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Although uncertain whether re-organization of the state unemployment compensation system automatically abolished their jobs, the system's approximately 1,800 employes today were sure at least of being retained temporarily.

Herschel C. Atkinson, administrator of the new bureau of unemployment compensation, appointed as "temporary emergency employes" in the bureau all persons who held positions on March 2 under the commission form of administration.

Meanwhile, Atkinson asked Atty. Gen. Thomas J. Herbert for a formal ruling on the status of the commission's employes under a bill signed into law by Gov. John W. Bricker to replace the commission with an administrator and a three-member board of review.

Possibility that the new law terminated the employment of all the commission's employes arose in a conference of the bureau officials and Don Power, secretary to Governor Bricker.

It was pointed out that the legislation creating the bureau did not contain a "saving clause" transferring the employes from the old to the new organization.

Atkinson said he was ordering all employes retained so that there would be no lapse of service by the unemployment compensation bureau. He stressed that the appointments were effective only until further notice.

SINKING SHIP REACHES PORT AFTER 2-DAY BATTLE IN GALE

(By United Press)

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland—Captain John Babcock triumphantly strode the deck of his battered sealer, the Ranger, today while 131 men of his crew rested from a vigorous two-day battle to keep her afloat in a zero gale after her seams had parted and filled her holds with water.

She was towed into haven at Trepassey, 81 miles southwest of here late last night by the British freighter Newfoundland and the S. S. Imogene which had reached her side, 150 miles at sea, almost 24 hours after Babcock sent out an S. O. S., saying he was going down.

For many frenzied hours the crew had little hope of saving themselves, as they baled out the hold with buckets, tubs and dishpans, and practically no hope for the ship. But they rode in safely, too weary to go ashore. They all stayed aboard for the night.

Eighteen of the crew had been taken aboard the Newfoundland in lifeboats during the height of the gale, but the other 131 stayed with their ship, a 68-year-old, 550-ton craft that slipped into port water-logged, listing and covered with ice.

The Newfoundland left the 18 Ranger seamen at Trepassey and proceeded to St. Johns. The Imogene remained by the sealer.

CONVICT SAYS HE WAS DENIED 'LAST REQUEST'

Killer of Columbus Used Car Dealer Flays Prison Head For Refusing Visit.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Frank Tracy, 32-year-old Cuyahoga county robber, died in the Ohio penitentiary electric chair last night for the slaying of a Columbus automobile dealer after criticizing Acting Warden William F. Amrine for refusing his last request.

In a written statement, handed to the prison chaplain in the death chamber, Tracy declared "Mr. Amrine has the policy of refusing a condemned man what little he may ask for as a last meal in this world."

"Could it be discipline that prompts Mr. Amrine to refuse a last request of a few words with a lifelong friend, to a man he is about to legally murder?" he asked.

'Chats' Not Allowed.

Amrine, appointed acting warden only two days ago and ordered by Welfare Director Charles Sherwood to improve "discipline and morale" in the penitentiary, said he denied Tracy permission to visit John Platzky, another prisoner.

"We can't have prisoners running back and forth visiting each other," Amrine declared.

The acting warden denied refusing the prisoner his last meal, asserting that Tracy refused to accept a dinner of fried chicken which had been prepared for him.

Amrine said Tracy had attempted to kill himself in his cell by slashing his right wrist with a small piece of steel. Dr. G. W. Keil, prison physician, said he had lost blood but was not weakened by the wound.

Tracy was convicted of shooting David Haskins, used car dealer, last July 17 during an attempted robbery three days after walked away from Ohio penitentiary where he was a trusty. He made no appeal of his death sentence and did not ask for executive clemency.

The execution was the first supervised by Amrine in his 33 years of prison work. He was state superintendent of corrections when named to succeed temporarily James C. Woodard, who has been suspended for 30 days as penitentiary warden.

Not That It Matters

Needed: One New Slogan, If We Are Going to Have To Save the Democracies

—By JANE WILLIAMS

PARDON my indifference, but I simply can't run a temperature over the plea "Save the democracies of Europe." It's just a case of having been vaccinated with the same toxin once before.

Only it was put up in a slightly different package. Then it was "Make the world safe for democracy!" I believed it. So did millions of Americans. Almost every congressman, Republican and Democrat alike, voted for it—"make the world safe for democracy." Thousands of American boys believed that in order to save their own country they had to first save the democracies of Europe. They believed it so sincerely and earnestly that they died for that belief.

So now what?

"Save the democracies of Europe." If we MUST have war to keep peace, please, can't we have a new slogan? The old one is moth-eaten.

BESIDES, if you save the democracies, what have you got? You've still got millions of Central Europeans who would prefer to have someone else do their thinking for them. They just aren't democratically inclined. I sometimes think that the only people on the other side of the Atlantic who sincerely want to govern themselves are the fighting Irish.

Europe is so desperately crowded with human beings of such widely varying ideas, religious, and political creeds that there will always be trouble over there. Empires have been built all over the map of Europe and have fallen; there probably will be greedy empire builders a thousand years from now.

But let's hope to the high heavens that we don't go on "saving the European democracies" every 20 years or so. And in the meantime couldn't we dig up a new slogan, something like:

"Save America for Americans."

A BOY arrested in Texas the other day confessed that he had worked his way through college by stealing motor cars.

Well, at least it's a nice change from the "lady, would you be willing to pay seven cents a month to help me through college?" type of work, as done by the Eternal Freshman of the magazine crews.

THAT one misstep may overshadow a lifetime of good deeds is a truism that the women of the D. A. R. are learning these days when contumely is being heaped upon them from many sources.

They've carried on an extensive Americanization program for years, sponsoring mountain schools and conducting citizenship classes—yet from now on they will have to face a tongue-in-cheek attitude from the general public on the sincerity of their purpose and intentions. One un-American and undemocratic act, which probably doesn't represent the majority of views in the national organization, has done the trick.

The racial ban in the contracts which closes Constitution Hall (their national home in Washington) to all colored people, is a concession to race prejudice and class hatred that would arouse little comment had it come from any other group. In fact, little has been said about a group of Southern women opposing the appearance in Washington of Marian Anderson, Negro singer. You expect it from them because racial prejudice is their heritage. But for a group that supposedly represents the highest ambitions for a real democracy—

Well, it's just one of those manbites-dog stories.

WAS tremendously interested this week when the manager of a Main street Ten Cent store told me there were 2,000 different kinds of articles in the store, made in 51 cities and towns in Ohio—but not a thing from Mansfield industry.

But then it probably would be impractical to handle electric refrigerators, electric and gas ranges, mattresses and sheet steel in a Ten Cent store.

WE crab about impossible situations in the moom pitchers, but at that life is far more surprising and unbelievable than fiction. The former Mansfield woman who won $25,000 in the big movie quiz contest this week, had just applied for old age pension and was on the verge of signing over her modest little home to the state in return for a meager pension. But just at the psychological moment, just when things were darkest—an unknown man called her up on the stage of a theater and said, "here, lady, is $25,000!"

The same thing, made in Hollywood, would have brought forth cries of "Fooey!" from most of us.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Pegler Wonders How Real Is Some Indignation at D. A. R. Over Hall Rental

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—It takes no very keen nose for fraud to scent the fake in some expressions of indignation which have been heard since the D. A. R. refused to rent its hall in Washington for a recital by a colored woman singer.

Labor organizations have enforced an exclusion policy against many worthy Americans for years. Some unions have denied colored persons the right to work in certain occupations because they were colored and for no other reason. Some have denied white men, as well as colored, the right to work in occupations over which the unions have established monopolies.

In one notorious case a moving picture job trust demands an iniation fee of $1,000 and refuses to accept new members, even though they are able to dig up the extortionate price of a union card, without which it is impossible to obtain work, and the applicant can prove that he is an artist as well as an American citizen in good standing.

I have a citation of a court case in which evidence showed that a union demanded an initiation fee of $3,000, which would make it one of the most expensive and exclusive clubs in the world.

One of the CIO unions, dominated by a Stalinist group of Communists, would, if it had sufficient strength to enforce its program, deny expression to artists in the literary line if they refused to take membership and thereby acquiesce in policies imposed by the Stalinists. Such Americans, artists or not, also would have to contribute money to the political program of an organization which they believe to be un-American or anti-American.

Mrs. Roosevelt resigned from the D. A. R. because by continuing to be a member she would seem to acquiesce in a policy of which she disapproved, the exclusion of colored performers from the hall in Washington. In that case, she should have resigned from the Democratic party long ago. I assume, of course, that Mrs. Roosevelt does belong to the Democratic party.

The D. A. R. will find among those who ridicule it for this act of exclusion men and women who make a great virtue of their racial tolerance, but are guilty of political intolerance equally narrow and vastly more threatening to the rights and independence of American citizens.

Marian Anderson, the victim of the present martyrdom in Washington, was excluded from one hall by a ruling which defeats its purpose and made her famous. Even if the D. A. R. insists, she will be barred from that particular hall, and there is something about the R. A. R. duct in the present contr which gives one to suspec the sisters may out-"last word" Mrs. Roosevelt with an explanation vindicating their position.

But among those who most angrily scold the D. A. R. are some who would bar certain craftsmen or artists from all employment and artistic expression in print for refusing, like Mrs. Roosevelt, to acquiesce in policies which they disapprove.

If the D. A. R.'s action proves to have been correctly reported, it will be a pleasure to join in the indorsement of Mrs. Roosevelt's action. But those who do applaud should be compelled to show clean hands in this test, which would eliminate some of the loudest members of the Communist clique.

Rules Empire That Knows No Bounds

Pope Spiritual Leader of One Out of Every Five Persons In World.

(By Associated Press)

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, upon whom fell the white mantle of the papacy, becomes in some respects the most powerful person in the world.

His worldly empire embraces only the 108 acres and the 1,000 citizens of the Vatican. But his spiritual empire knows no bounds. Nearly one in every five persons accepts his spiritual leadership. That's half of Christendom.

Many more are interested in what he says and does—are influenced to some extent by what he teaches. Thousands of publications—and the radio—carry his messages to the ends of the world.

Many nations are called Catholic—those of Latin America, for instance, and Italy, Spain, Portugal and Belgium. Three are said to be 100 per cent Catholic—the tiny states of Andorra and San Marino, and, of course, the Vatican state.

Catholic sources estimate the world's Catholic population as upwards of 375,000,000. Some 22,000,000 live in the United States; 136,000,000 in the Americas as a whole; 210,000,000 in Europe; 19,000,000 in Asia; 8,000,000 in Africa.

In one sense, missionaries are the ambassadors of that empire—in all the remote places of the world they carry on the church's work.

But the Pope has ambassadors in the more worldly sense, too—60 diplomatic representatives to as many nations. Some, like those to the United States and Great Britain, are called Apostolic Delegates. They have no official standing in the countries to which they are sent, but they are usually accorded diplomatic courtesies. Thirty-seven nations send ambassadors or ministers to the Vatican.

Recognizing the Pope as a sovereign, Great Britain in 1933 instructed the fleet that he is entitled to a sovereign's salute of 21 guns.

The pope's great responsibilities are shared by a sort of cabinet—the 12 Sacred Congregations, which are standing committees. He is the head of the church's judicial system. His little nation has its own coinage and postage stamps.

Even so, his administrative responsibilities are tremendous. In the United States alone, for instance, there are about 33,000 clergymen as agents in the propagation of the faith, as spiritual guides, educators and administrators of widespread properties.

The Official Catholic Directory lists more than 18,000 churches, ranging from cathedrals to missions, and the church has considerable other real estate.

Educational facilities in the United States include 206 seminaries, 193 colleges for men, 676 academies and colleges for girls, 1,306 high schools, 8,028 parochial schools. The total enrollment probably is around 3,000,000.

There are also 326 Catholic orphan asylums, 168 homes for the aged, and 684 hospitals.

The thousands of fraternal, professional, social and recreational Catholic groups in this country have their counterpart in other nations. In some countries there is also a political expression in Catholic parties.

And the hub of all this worldwide whirl of activity is one man—His Holiness, the Bishop of Rome, Supreme Pontiff of the Universal church.

MAKES SADDLES

Montana Man, 82, Recalls Days of Early West.

MILES CITY, Mont.,—Fred W. Kettler, 82, is still making saddles in Miles City, Mont. Since 1873, when as a lad of 16 he worked as an apprentice in the Jacob Strauss saddle shop in St. Louis, Kettler has plied his trade.

Through the hectic days of the open range when cowpokes ordered $40 saddles, through the present years of modern rodeo and motion pictures, when contestants and film stars order decorated equipment costing hundreds of dollars, Kettler has turned out saddles of all descriptions.

SWITCH CHURCH

Birds, Fired Upon At One Building, Make Home In Another.

PADUCAH, Ky.—(INS)—Religious affiliation means nothing to a pigeon, especially when he's under gunfire. Paducah authorities recently agreed to help get rid of pigeons which had become a general nuisance around a Presbyterian church. Spurred by small bore shotguns the birds took hurried leaves of absence.

But, they didn't fly far—no farther than the towers of St. Francis de Sales Catholic church where they found safe refuge.

CINCINNATI — (U.P.) — All the members of Cincinnati's police department are getting their thumb prints taken for self-identification in case one of them visits another city.

ELECTION OF CARDINAL PACELLI AS POPE BROKE 10 TRADITIONS

VATICAN CITY —(U.P.)— Just what a break with tradition the election of the new pope means was pointed out today by Vatican officials:

1. He broke the tradition that the favorite candidate is not elected—"He who goes into the conclave as pope comes out as a cardinal."

2. He was the first secretary of state and camerlengo of the church to be elected since 1799.

3. He is the first cardinal of the Curia to be elected since Gregory XVI in 1831.

4. He was the first pope to have visited both North and South America before his ascension.

5. He was the first cardinal not to occupy his papal apartments on the night of his election. The new pope spent the night in his "cell" No. 13 in the conclave area.

6. He was the first cardinal to be elected during the first voting day, and the second to be elected on three ballots.

7. He was the first real Roman to occupy the throne since 1724.

8. He is the first pope to have his election announced over the radio.

9. He was the first pope elected since the vatican was restored to temporal power.

10. He was the first pope to have flown in an airplane.

And yesterday, in less than 24 hours after his election, the new pope broadcast a message to the world by radio. Later in the day he took his first automobile ride as pontiff in the Vatican grounds. For his outing, the pope chose a papal automobile—an American model almost 10 years old—which was a favorite of the late Pope Pius XI.

Reveals New Pope Got All But Own Vote.

VATICAN CITY—(INS)—Except for the fact he did not vote for himself, the election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli as pope was unanimous, the official Vatican News Service disclosed today.

Three ballots were cast. On the first, Pacelli received 35 votes. On the second he was accorded 40.

The third and final ballot gave Pacelli 61 votes. His own ballot, it was learned, was cast for Gennaro Cardinal Granito-Pignatelli Di Belmonte, 82-year-old dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals.

The work of decorating the basilica of St. Peter in anticipation of the papal coronation already is underway.

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Serve the Lord with gladness: come before his presence with singing. . . . Know ye that the Lord he is God: it is he that hath made us, and not we ourselves; we are his people, and the sheep of his pasture" (Psalm 100:2,3).

Another 'Probe' at Ohio Penitentiary.

SUCH "shake-ups" as that now in progress at Ohio State penitentiary are not uncommon.

They have a habit of bobbing up about every so often at the ancient Columbus penal institution, which is about the poorest excuse for a prison that can be found anywhere in the country.

Housing more than 4,000 various types of offenders and lacking practically all facilities for treating prisoners in accord with modern ideas in criminology, Ohio penitentiary may well be regarded as a breeding place for crime, rather than an institution for either permanent segregation of habitual criminals or rehabilitation of those deemed worthy of "another chance."

The present investigation, which involves suspension of Warden Woodard and a number of his aids, has to do with charges that "crooked" guards have been associated with the operation of a liquor and dope ring inside the penitentiary walls, and accusations that some convicts have been accorded special privileges.

It is gratifying to learn that William F. Amrine, state superintendent of corrections, states there is no evidence of graft or dishonesty on the part of Warden Woodard, and that most of the approximately 225 prison guards are of high caliber.

The position of penitentiary warden is a difficult one to fill satisfactorily. Few men have the varied qualifications of executive ability, humane principles and stern disciplinary tactics required for such a job. If Warden Woodard has honestly and conscientiously tried to perform his duties to the best of his ability, it is no reflection on him if he has failed to measure up to the heavy responsibilities imposed.

Enforcement Serves Purpose.

EARLIER discussion of the advisability of installing parking meters on some of Mansfield's downtown streets revolved almost entirely around the problem of inadequate parking space in the business section.

At that time there was no apparent effort to prevent over-time parking in restricted zones, and all-day parking in the most convenient available space was common practice.

It has now been demonstrated that consistent enforcement of time limits for parking on business streets will relieve congestion and leave ample space available for short-time parkers.

If enforcement is to be continuous and dependable, instead of desultory, no immediate need for parking meters is apparent.

Courteous Advertising.

THE question has been asked: "Why is printed advertising more rational and trustworthy than radio advertising?"

If this is true, and many people seem to feel that it is, the reasons are probably as follows:

First, printed advertising in newspapers and magazines is a long-established means of communication between seller and buyer, which has worked out from experience a clean, effective technique.

Second, print is enduring. The printed page is there, to be studied in detail, preserved and referred to at any time. There can be no mistake about a printed announcement.

Third, because this is so, statements must be so accurate and trustworthy that there can be no question about them. Printed advertising is responsible.

Fourth, printed advertising is courteous. It does not intrude itself upon the prospective customer. It is not forced or shouted into eye or ear. It does not intrude in the middle of a news or fiction story. It does not annoy. It waits courteously for the reader's voluntary attention.

Flashers or Watchmen.

UNLESS the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company proceeds immediately to install flasher warning signals at the Bowman street grade crossing, in accordance with an order issued a year ago by the state utilities commission, it is entirely reasonable that the commission require the railroad to provide watchmen at that crossing until flashers are put in operation.

It is recalled that such action was taken some years ago at the steel plant crossing on Bowman street, when the Pennsylvania Railroad company was neglectful about installing flashers, after being ordered to do so, and was compelled by the utilities commission to place guards on duty at this crossing for the full 24-hour period, until flashers were provided.

Air Experience Needed.

AFTER careful study of 100 aircraft accidents which occurred during the four months beginning Aug. 22, including only non-airline planes and pilots, the Air Safety board reports that the chief air hazard is inexperience. It found that both accidents and fatalities decrease in number and ratio as flying experience increases. It attributes most non-airline accidents to "poor technique, poor judgment or carelessness."

This indicates two facts, one of them reassuring. Most of the accidents studied were unwarranted. Most of them would not have occurred if the pilots involved had had more training before they were allowed to take charge of the controls.

The reassuring fact is that these accidents, clearly avoidable, have served to teach others the requirements of safe flying.

One Hollywood marriage is to be dissolved, so that the parties can resume being friends.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — Almost every major labor difficulty is expected here to melt like butter in the sun if the president's peace proposal brings the conflict between AFL and CIO to an early end.

In turn, the failure to end it already has brought symptoms of the losses labor may expect to suffer if its tong war persists.

Equally to the point, labor analysts assert that neither side can avoid peace efforts without suffering damaging loss of public good will.

First off, both the general public and the administration now seem agreed that business and industry must be given every assistance. One of industry's discouraging elements is labor strife. The administration quite evidently feels that the National Labor Relations act and certain other aids represent a substantial job done for labor. For labor to continue internal wrangling in spite of this leaves the New Deal in a poor way to defend its pro-labor course—and so the president acted:

Once before he publicly scolded a labor faction, but scolded business at the same time by saying "a plague o' both your houses" when the General Motors-CIO dispute had hit a new high. In his recent letter to the rival labor leaders, however, the whole scolding, if such it could be termed, was directed at labor.

A Battle of Leaders.

THE fight has long since degenerated into a battle between leaders—it is not a battle over labor. Each side has made offers which, if accepted by the other, would end most, of the discord. But the difficulty lies in finding a means of merging the two groups, and at the same time saving to each a fair portion of power.

AFL has offered to take CIO unions back into the organization they left in 1935. But AFL terms leave AFL leadership in control. In turn, CIO has offered to return to AFL if it can retain its organization intact. That would put AFL leaders in a secondary position, because membership in industrial organizations appears to outnumber AFL craft membership.

AFL leaders heartily distrust the National Labor Relations board, asserting it has persistently favored CIO organizations. As a result AFL has submitted a whole course of amendments to the act and hearings have been arranged by the senate labor committee.

But members of the committee, feeling that peace between the two groups would end the fight over the act, have already arranged to postpone the hearings provided peace negotiations are started. Some AFL officials have privately conceded that certain of the proposed amendments were "retaliatory" against alleged favoritism of the board toward CIO. These, at any rate, would be dropped if the two came to terms.

AFL In Best Spot?

WHICH side will come victorious out of the proposed negotiations is anybody's guess. Eighteen months ago when they first attempted to end their difference, CIO seemed in the ascendant, having organized big steel, the automotive industry, and a number of minor industries, bringing its membership above AFL.

It is likely now that AFL's position is the better. David Dubinsky's garment workers have withdrawn from CIO in protest at CIO refusal to come to terms with AFL. Moreover, the supreme court emphatically condemned the sit-down strike, one of CIO's principal weapons a year or so ago.

HE DIDN'T KNOW HIS OWN STRENGTH

Scouting For Presidential Timber

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

There's no denying it, Harry L. Hopkins looms more largely, day by day, on the political horizon, as a 1940 Democratic possibility for the presidential nomination.

Of course I don't contend that he stands much chance of getting it—not from present indications. Still, he seems a bit less impossible than he did not so very long ago. As recently as when he was WPA boss all intelligent Washington commentators simply scoffed at the notion that his bid for the White House was better than about 1,000-to-1. Now, as commerce secretary, he is rated as maybe 1 against 100.

This is quite an improvement in so short a time. If Harry can keep it up, he should be fairly formidable a year hence. The best guessing is that he can't. Yet he does have one advantage; the Democrats are mightily hard up for a good 1940 candidate.

Interior Secretary Ickes or Agriculture Secretary Wallace would do quite well for the New Deal Democrats, or Vice President Garner or Senator Clark for the Old Dealers, but the Old Dealers certainly would turn thumbs down on Ickes or Wallace; the New Dealers on Garner or Clark. Parenthetically, I'm assuming that President Roosevelt is out of the situtaion for a third term, which I believe now to be assured. All this being the case, if the Democrats split, pro and anti New Dealer-ishly, the Republicans will have a corking good break to win.

Hopkins a Compromise.

What the Democrats need imperatively is a good compromise leader. But they haven't one! No? How about Harry Hopkins? At this point I hear raucous laughter. Think of Harry Hopkins!—as a right-left compromise!

Well, wait!

The Republicans have no rip-snorting standard-bearer to offer, either. That is to say, their crowd doesn't suggest even a moderate liberal with any especial appeal. Their bunch is too extremely conservative — except darned few, such as Senator Hiram Johnson or Gerald P. Nye (neither of whom, for manifest reasons would fill the bill), or Mayor Fiorella H. LaGuardia of New York.

Yes, Mayor LaGuardia! He could classify as a Republican. He has served in congress under the G. O. P. label. He is as good a Republican as Secretaries Ickes and Wallace are Democrats. Moreover, he's Republicanly talked about. And he has appeal. Urban workers like him, and so does agriculture. It's a heck of a hard job to unite these two interests. Fiorella could do it, perhaps.

But—

Imagine, LaGuardia opposed to Hopkins! Where would conservatism get off? The G. O. P. has got to have a liberal candidate. There's no mistaking that. If it puts up a reactionary it's licked, regardless of his rival's political and economic philosophy and regardless also of inter-party splits. All leading Republicans recognize it.

Hopkins vs. LaGuardia.

Now, LaGuardia, on the square, is a liberal. In fact, that is too mild a term. He is a radical. Still, he stands pat. We know just how radical he is. We can disagree with him, but we are aware where he is at.

Harry Hopkins, since his promotion from WPA to the Commerce Department secretaryship, has changed so fast as to be rather confusing. He was a welfare worker the other day. Today he is very considerate of big business.

There's a reliability about Fiorello.

Harry L. is variable.

However, it's quite possible that neither of the two ever will be nominated for president of the United States.

The Decline of Politeness.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

GENERALLY speaking, we Americans were a kinda crude outfit back in Grampaw's time. We couldn't speak a smitch of French . . . and we thought caviar was related to the hoof 'n' mouth disease. (Which I'm not yet sure it isn't!) We'd never heard of Halitosis or Dishwater Hands. Outside of important dukes, practically everyone slept on straw ticks and earned his own eats. There wasn't a radio in the nation, nor a perfumed cigarette, and our domestic conveniences were usually regulated by remote control.

Yet there was one evidence of civilization which we all supported 100 per cent—and which you could bet on finding wherever you went, even in those primitive outposts where gents slept in their shooting irons and spurs. I refer to that practically obsolete institution—POLITENESS.

Believe it or not, this nation had manners—once. We weren't much on the fancy palaver . . . but when it came to kindness and consideration we held a full house. And it wasn't just a surface gesture . . . or a good time treat. No matter how tough the going—and it generally wasn't Anything Else But—we were an amiable, generous, neighborly lot.

But today — well, judge for yourself, Mabel. Not that I'm fussy. I never did see why an able-bodied woman should expect some man to open her door or fetch her chair. And these females who hold male jobs and absorb male whisky yet insist on the poor guys acting as if Knighthood were Still in Flower, seem plumb unreasonable to me. So, s'far as I'm concerned, no one needs to act ornamental. But I surely would like to see a little OLD-FASHIONED GOOD NATURE. And Mrs. Allen Edsall admits she could use a helping herself—

"Have you noticed the decline of common courtesy?" says she. "From being the friendliest people on earth, I believe we have become the most ill-natured.

"Father snaps at Mother because he didn't dare snap at the Boss. Mother resents the unfairness and snaps back. Then they both take it out on the youngsters. Whereupon Junior biffs Sister—or vice versa. And a neighbor drops in and takes sides and the war is on.

"It is an age of vicious smartness. Arrogance and surliness are seen everywhere. Everyone is envious and sulky. Everyone feels abused and wants to "get hunk" with somebody in return. And it isn't confined to the family circle . . . the neighborhood back fence . . . the club meeting. Our public manners are a disgrace. Our town, state and federal conferences are marked by disgraceful brawls. Our senators all but throw spit balls at each other. Yet we dare criticize the foreign dictators. They are only doing on an enlarged scale what we do to a lesser degree.

"How about a Back-To-Politeness Campaign? An annual Good Manners Day? Or perhaps daily Courtesy Courses in our schools? I'd like to see it tried."

(Mrs. Allen) Ethel M. Edsall,
Warren, Michigan.

So would I, my dear. And while we're on the subject, I'd like to take a particular poke at our MOVIE MANNERS. Between these comrades who sprawl full length while you try to get in . . . and the others who stamp ruthlessly over your topography in their mad rush to get out . . . and the Little Helpfuls who tell the whole story three reels in advance of each incident . . . and the Enthusiastics who pant in your ear . . . and the Tired Business Men who sleep on your neck . . . Movie Night has become a Major Menace. There orta be a law . . . and a Public Executioner Yes, you guessed it. I'll pay for the chance!

Radio Amateurs.

A decade and a half ago, when the radio telephone was new, some thousands—maybe millions—of young men turned their attention to the manufacture of receiving sets out of purchased parts, and a new jargon linked a new army of fans. Those were the days when if you picked up Cuba or San Francisco you went out and celebrated. When manufacturers began turning out low-priced receiving sets the days of the home-built set were largely ended.

But the fan who loves to tinker did not disappear. In large numbers he has been transformed into a "ham"—an amateur radio operator. The FCC reports that 51,000 "hams" now hold licenses in the United States. Of these more than 1,000 are said to be shut-ins, whose horizons by this invention have been made as wide as the world.—New York Times.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

INDUSTRIAL production has not increased thus far this year as rapidly as it did last fall.

"With the emphasis shifted from reform to recovery, this administration is now determined to promote that recovery with all the vigor and power at its command," Commerce Secretary Hopkins has proclaimed.

And even though Treasury Secretary Morgenthau has warned that this year's budget will necessitate increasing the limit on the public debt to $50,000,000,000, the President has declared business need fear no new taxes. And treasury experts have been assigned to find ways to help business men by simplifying corporation taxes.

Furthermore, the monopoly investigating committee has announced that it will propose no additional anti-trust legislation during this session of congress. And leaders have indicated that the whole program for this session may be shortened considerably, to make adjournment in June possible.

Honorable Labor Peace?

"Business men will not regain confidence," says Almon E. Roth, president of the San Francisco Employers Council, "so long as there is uncertainty and bad faith in the collective-bargaining field . . . lack of unity in labor's ranks."

And President Roosevelt recently appealed to "dear Bill" Green and "dear John" Lewis to seek "peace with honor"—because 'tis right, possible, desirable and an "almost necessary step for the further development of the co-operation between free men in a democratic society such as ours."

So this week labor's two heads appointed negotiating committees and Labor Secretary Perkins arranged to get them together.

The AFL-CIO quarrel dates back to 1935, and previous efforts to patch it up have failed. Fundamentally it is a fight over how to classify workers. AFL would unite all who follow the same trade, regardless of what industry employs them. CIO would unite all employes of each industry, regardless of what trade they follow.

But other grave differences have arisen, too—over the National Labor Relations law, for instance.

Sitters Sat Upon.

The NLRB this week lost three supreme court cases. One involved an employer's right to fire sit-down strikers. The court upheld that seizure of a plant by employes "would put a premium on resort to force."

The supreme court, in another case, ruled that men who strike in violation of a contract have severed relations with their boss. And in a third decision, the court set aside a labor board order.

These were NLRB's first major reversals and the court's action encouraged congressional critics of the board to press the campaign to amend the law.

People

Rich Boy, Poor Papa.

Gloria Vanderbilt and Brenda Frazier help their mothers financially. And now Peter Salm, 4, son of Count Ludwig Salm and Millicent Rogers, divorced, has been asked to help finance his father. Peter inherited $2,350,000, but his count-papa is broke. The count asserts the Nazis took his funds when they took Austria, and is petitioning $30,000 a year from his son.

Murder Mystery.

Anya Sosoyeva, 32, blond Russian dancer, once in Ziegfeld's Follies," was to have appeared last week in a parody of "Idiot's Delight" at Los Angeles City college. On her way to the auditorium, she was seized and beaten to death. As clues to the mystery, police obtained a comb, a card, a glove and a club—all blood-stained.

Pals No Longer.

Charlie Mitchell confessed on Wednesday, New York police said, that it was he who kidnaped the young son of his best friend, prosperous George Katz, on Feb. 20. Charlie had served as intermediary in trying to get the boy back from the "kidnapers."

At Home

Chicago's Candidates.

Democrats have renominated Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Republicans have nominated Dwight H. Green for mayor of Chicago. Kelly got more than half the total votes cast in both parties' primaries.

Kelly used to swing a pickaxe. He has been mayor ever since Mayor Cermak was killed by a bullet aimed at President Roosevelt in 1933. Green used to play college football. He was the U. S. district attorney who prosecuted Al Capone.

Dewey Convicts Hines.

Jimmy Hines, 62, felt this week as though he had been "kicked in the belly." Thomas E. Dewey, 36, had convicted him of being a politician who protected crooks. A son, and grandson of Tammany captains, himself a Tammany leader for 26 years, Hines is to be sentenced March 13. As a first offender, he may get from one to 27 years.

New York City Racket-Buster Dewey, with a record of 72 successive convictions, went after Hines last fall. The first trial was a mistrial.

Sparks' Goodby—Ha!

"Guess I will get my feet wet now. Ha!"

With that farewell message, the radioman on a sinking American sugar boat "tied down" his key. His ship had collided with a German freighter carrying scrap iron to Japan. For eight hours the deserted radio's hum could still be heard. Meanwhile, in the foggy night, the Germans rescued the American vessel's crew.

Abroad

New Pope.

A rainbow hung over the Vatican as all 62 cardinals of the Roman Catholic church entered a solemn, secret conclave Wednesday to elect a new Pope.

They prayed for guidance to the Holy Ghost and heard a sermon in which they were advised that the new pointiff's greatest task will be to lead the world back to "evangelical and Christian precepts."

And the next day white smoke from the chimney over the conclave chapel signified the election of Cardinal Pacelli as new Pope Pius XII. Coronation ceremonies have been set for Sunday, March 12.

A surprise to many forecasters was the speed with which the balloting was concluded. Not since 1623 had a Pope been elected, as he was, on the third ballot.

Turn to Franco.

With a trembling hand, on a sheet of paper from a school notebook, Manuel Azana wrote out his resignation from the presidency of the Spanish republic. On March 1, Madrid officials announced that Diego Martinez Barrio would succeed him.

But Great Britain and France no longer recognized the republic. Deeming Generalissimo Francisco Franco virtually "triunfante" (triumphant), the two democracies had turned to him. Loyalist leaders were assured "sympathetic consideration" if they chose to flee to England. Shipments of supplies to them via France were tabooed. And Franco's troops were poised to enter Madrid.

Belgium's Troubles.

Disputes over Belgium's policy toward Spain and the appointment of a war-time pro-German to the Flemish Academy led to the fall of Premier Paul Henri Spaak's government on Feb. 9. The king then turned to a former premier, Henri Jaspar—who declined and died a few days later. And finally, Feb. 21, Hubert Pierlot formed a coalition cabinet. But his attempts to balance the budget by cutting salaries and pensions aroused so much opposition that he resigned this week.

Mass Migrations.

Germans estimate 240,000 Jews have left the Third Reich already and that 500,000 more want to leave. To hurry them up, Berlin's police now require that 100 be tagged every day to pack up, pay up and go within 14 days. This order apparently greatly complicates the Intergovernmental Refugee committee's task.

Although eager to be rid of the Jews, Reichsfuehrer Hitler wants his subjects to multiply, and on April 1 childless German couples' income taxes will go up 40 per cent. "We shall use all our power," Field Marshall Goering said, "to increase our present 80,000,000 population to 100,000,000. . . . Young men will stream in double and three-fold numbers into barracks. We intend to use every one of them."

'War' In Warsaw.

Danzig, the League of Nations' baby and a port for Poland, is predominately German. Because a sign in a cafe read, "Dogs and Poles Prohibited," university students in Poland recently roa[illegible] "Down with Germans!"

VARIETY OF AFFAIRS PLANNED NEXT WEEK

Glance at Scheduled Events for Early March Reveal Activities of Leading Mansfield Club Women.

By FRANCES E. GENSLEY

AFTER the tricky way the weather has acted the last couple week-ends, we have definitely decided to be quiet on that subject, and talk about most anything else that is more reliable. For example we'd like to tell you this Saturday about some of the thrilling sounding plans various clubs are making for these early March meetings, but it is awfully hard for us to get our eye off that dizzy chartreuse hat in a downtown window long enough to take even a quick glance at the coming week's activities.

So far these Lenten week-ends have been very quiet in our city, and we have not been able to give you a club reporter's view of Saturday night frolics — because the S. N. F.'s have not been. But the calendar for the next week is fat, and promises a surprise on every page so let's hop into the middle here and take a look at Monday.

Looking Over the Week's Calendar.

Monday.

Maybe you remember from your own college days that those Chi Omega girls were active and busy. Well, there's something about it that carries over into the alumnae groups, too. Although comparatively new in Mansfield, the girls have their heads together now with plans for a variety of interesting activities. Some of these things will get into working order Monday night when Mrs. John McLean, West Chestnut street, entertains the club.

Another group new to Mansfield, the Richland County Medical association auxiliary, will have a session with Mrs. C. H. Bell on Dickson parkway the same evening. The Women's Club will be the scene of the Round Table club gathering Monday when Mrs. William F. Black entertains.

"Folk Music" will be the subject for the program of the Music Study club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel the same evening. Mrs. F. A. Hoffman is in charge, and Mrs. E. D. Gibson, Mrs. Fred (Minnie Marks) Cahall, Miss Margery Ader, Miss Thelma Reed and John Grabler are on the program. Miss Marguerite Speas will present a group of her pupils as assisting artists, and Miss Beatrice Colvin is the hostess.

Among the other things planned are the session of the Delphinium club, the Pocahontas degree team, the Mary Magdalene class and the Ruth chapter of the Eastern Stars.

Tuesday.

Variety is the order for Tuesday as everything from charitable clubs to sororities gather to continue their regular work. During the afternoon mothers of Chi Sigma girls will be playing bridge at the home of Mrs. J. Merton Holcombe on Heineman boulevard. The same evening the sorority will have a business session at the hotel.

While Chi Sigma members are conducting their meeting in one room at the hotel another will house the Alpha Pi Sigma girls who will have a combined social and business session. Two of the leading study clubs, the Travelers and the Mansfield Sorosis, will also be in session, the latter having a meeting with Miss Grace Courtney at the Club while the former is in session with Mrs. W. L. Miller.

Some of the social affairs planned include meetings of the American Legion Bridge club at the home, the E-T club with Mrs. Harvey Sawhill, the Buona Sera club with Mrs. C. E. Little, and the Navajo club with Mrs. Margaretta Wolf. Two other important gatherings include the Audubon club and the Soroptimist club. Mrs. Walter Ober will be hostess for the nature study group at the Women's Club, while the latter organization has a luncheon at the Towne House with Mrs. George Perry.

Several lodge groups have made plans including the Delano auxiliary which plans a regular meeting at the hall, and the Lillian Gordon auxiliary which will have a covered-dish evening dinner with Mrs. Clyde Smith on West Second street. Mrs. Louis Lamoreux will entertain members of the Charity club who will foregather at her Euclid avenue home to go quietly about their charity work.

And with the Women's auxiliary to the I. T. U. arranging to meet with Mrs. Harold Bracey and the Temple Emmanuel Sisterhood planning an afternoon session at the temple it looks like Tuesday will be well-filled.

The only other plans for that day which we have heard about include the novel study group meeting with Miss Katherine Culp on Marion avenue, a gathering of the Rain or Shine class up at the South Main Street Evangelical church and a session of the Senior World Wide guild with Mrs. Paul Birmelin.

Wednesday.

A great many of Mansfield's study clubs assemble for their session either Wednesday afternoon or evening so today there is considerable to talk about. The Fred Herring home on West Third street will be the scene of the meeting of the Wednesday Study club this week, and the Sappho clubbers will have lunch at the Club. The hostesses for this session include Mrs. G. G. Rohleder, Mrs. F. E. Rudd, Mrs. L. J. Schubert, Mrs. C. F. Sheriff and Mrs. J. L. Stevens.

In the evening Mrs. F. J. Heringhaus will open her Coleman road home to members of the Student club when a discussion of socialized medicine is conducted. Mrs. L. D. Twitchell is scheduled to present a book review when Mrs. Douglas Gott hostesses the Conversational club members.

The same night the Business and Professional Women's club will have their birthday dinner at the hotel. Dr. C. L. Anspach of Ashland college will be the guest speaker for the affair which has been arranged by Bertha and Emma Reinewald, Teresa Pfeifer, Helen Herring, Flora Lentzy, Pearl Wierman and Adelaide Underwood.

Another social affair of grave importance to one of Mansfield's clubs is the initiation service which will be held for 10 candidates of the Women of the Moose at their home. Preceding the ceremony a dinner for Mrs. Martha Starling, Erie, Pa., grand dean of the lodge, has been arranged at the Staiger tea room.

Among the social groups to meet are the Friendly Eight club, the Jolly Dozen Euchre club, the May-Be club and the F. N. club. Two charitable organizations—the Lady Samaritans and the Matlock Charity Band—will also meet. The first group will have an all-day session and dinner at the park pavilion, while Mrs. O. F. Garver is hostess to the others at the Reformatory.

My but everyone will be busy today! All we have written yet there is much to tell of. Mrs. Dawson Maxwell, for instance, will be hostess at her Springmill street home to the Women's Missionary society of the First Brethren church; the Prospect Park Women's auxiliary will meet at the park for business and a benefit bridge party; the Good Cheer circle of the South Main Street church with Mrs. Elmer Moser, Mrs. Amos Birch and Mrs. W. G. Herrold.

Nor is this all for the Phi Theta Alpha girls will be entertained by Miss Marjorie Ewing on Rae avenue, and Mrs. Cleo Hainer will take over the hostess duties for the Esther class of the Mayflower Congregational church. Those studious younger women who are members of the Philomathian club are all set for their meeting with Mrs. Lewis F. Hartman on North Townview circle. The parish house of the First Lutheran church will be the scene of the covered-dish dinner of the Catherine Van Bora class.

And so much for Wednesday and its affairs.

Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Mahoney will be the hostess when members of the Timely Topics club come up to her Sherman avenue home for one of their regular study sessions. The Y. W. club rooms will be occupied by a group of young women who are interested in the fine art of story telling Thursday evening as the Mansfield Story Telling League conducts a regular meeting.

Some of the younger socialites have plans too as is shown by the Junior Music club meeting set at Helen Hagelbarger's home on West Third street, and the Crescendo session which is to be held with Miss Marian Given on West Fifth street.

Any day or every day is suitable for card playing, and the real addicts will tell you that they'd rather play than eat. Now we're not saying that, because some simply delicious refreshments are trotted out at the close of the meetings of the card clubs, but certainly some of our friends enjoy bridge, five hundred, pinochle and other games.

Some of the social groups with plans for Thursday are the Soiree club which Miss Elizabeth Frisch will entertain, the Gaytime club that will gather with Mrs. Dale Elliott, the We club with Mrs. Wayne McFarland and the Jolly Times club with Mrs. Charles Daugherty. Miss Helen Stuhlderher will entertain the Octave club, and the Needlecraft meeting will be held with Mrs. Belle Arnold.

And so to other things. Mrs. Leo Hunt will open her home for the meeting of the Loyal Daughters class of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, and Mrs. Sadie Adams will be hostess to the Ladies guild of the Mayflower Congregational church. The Welfare club will dine at North Lake park and sew for charity, while the Prospect Mothers club has a session at the school. The Mary Markley society will gather with Mrs. William Enlow, and Mrs. A. H. Weikert is entertaining the Chautauqua circle.

Friday.

So another Friday has rolled around again, and we are chalking up another week, regretting a bit, perhaps, the things we didn't do, and looking forward to the things which still must be done.

Little is planned for this day but the Cosmopolitan club plans an interesting meeting as always. Mrs. H. G. Balyeat, Edgewood road, will entertain. The Art Study club will gather at the same time with Mrs. David R. Talbot at her Woodhill road home.

That mixed bridge party that the University club members originally planned to hold Saturday night of this week has been advanced to March 10. The affair will be held at 8:30 p. m. in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Other meetings include the Domestic Art session with Mrs. Walter Roselip, Mulberry street: L'Allegro session at Mrs. Clayton Crowl's, a meeting of the Sarah E. Lewis Junior club, the Pythian Sisters, the Gardenia club and the T. N. T. club.

Saturday.

With this we come to Saturday and find a wedding to brighten the horizon. Miss Sylvia Ververka and Roy Myers will marry at the bride's mother's home on Arlington avenue. In the evening Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Todd will open their home to the Child Study club members and their husbands.

Dr. Anspach will be here to speak to the group at this special meeting. Coterie club members will likewise gather with Mrs. George Garrison.

Announcement of Marriage, Civic Music Group In Headlines

At a party given by Mrs. H. W. Frye at the Susie Janis home Feb. 23 the marriage of her daughter, Virginia (seated right above), to Dr. Riley E. Frush was announced. The ceremony was performed in Cleveland on Feb. 4, and the couple is now at home at the Frye residence at 26 Wolfe avenue. Seated next to Mrs. Frush is Miss Eileen Logan, and the two women pictured standing are (left) Mrs. Jack McKnight and Mrs. Howard Yarnell.

Graham, Mrs. Scott Coffin, Mrs. W. E. Wygant, Mrs. Paul Cropper, (who is general chairman of the drive), Mrs. E. D. Gibson and Miss Hester Robinson. Mrs. Wygant will have charge of the opening dinner March 13 at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Mrs. William Layton, who is not shown here, is a member of the committee and has been named headquarters chairman. Headquarters will be in the Ohio Fuel Gas company building, Park avenue west, and opens next Wednesday.

You Too Can Be Popular

No girl will be a wallflower if she has her wits about her and uses them. The time has come when good nature, sparkling humor and intelligence are parts of the beauty formula. One has to be interesting these days when the pretty-pretties are running all over the face of the earth. The dear little dolly with the perfect profile, the roses-and-snow complexion, the heavenly coiffure and a head full of nothing may catch the eye but she does not hold the attention.

For the time being let the beauty class forget factory blushes, demountable eyelashes and the elevated hairdress. Let them consider a bit those inner qualities that make women endearing. How does one acquire them? What's the secret? It is the development of qualities of charm kindliness, sympathy, pleasing manners. And don't forget that if you are to be nice you must have nice thoughts. Cultivate a tender feeling for your fellow creatures. Be tolerant instead of critical.

There are countless ways of improving the personality. One doesn't have to be clever or overly intelligent. One has but to be human, to let free the good impulses, hold back the meanie ones.

Be observing. Use your eyes and ears. If you notice an unpleasing quality in another girl, ask yourself if you haven't got it. A loud voice, for instance. Or a slouchy manner of standing and walking. Or the habit of interrupting. Men hate that. They hate loud voices, too.

Read good books. You will learn much from them. People who are terested in books, music or pictures can always make themselves entertaining.

Keep womanly always. That means that you must never be bossy or snobbish or snappy. Ladies just aren't.

The brain, like the body, needs exercise. It is the only way to keep it normal and healthy, in a state of continual improvement. Good books and delightful conversation are mental stimulants.

To be charming is more essential to happiness and popularity than is external loveliness. It touches the heart while external beauty may be as cold as ice. Combine the two and you win. Good looks can be bought at the beauty shop but charm is of one's own making. Charming parents are a great help. Every baby coming into the world should make it a point to pick out the right kind.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I DO NOT need to tell you," Philip Veritzen said, taking up his saga again after a silence which I knew was studded with poignant memories, "what was the result of that close association with the Princess Olga, the most beautiful girl I had ever seen. I fell desperately in love with her."

"And Olga?"

"I was never sure," he said simply. "She was extremely young, just out of the schoolroom, and her distant cousin, Rudolph, the crown prince, and I were the first young men with whom she ever had been allowed to walk or ride or dance or play games. As I told you, Rudolph was so wildly in love with his actress-sweetheart that he paid only the most perfunctory attention to Olga, afraid that his name might be linked with hers, and spent all of his enforced social hours at the castle in the company of his young sister, Marie. This threw Olga and me constantly together, and Marie, who adored us both, reveled in the romance, which to her eyes—she was even younger than Olga—seemed like a fairy tale come to life.

"Not even to you can I reveal the annals of those charmed days," he went on. "Suffice it to say that I lived in a fool's paradise of dreams, disturbed only by my doubts that Olga really knew her own heart when she said—"

He clipped his speech as one might snip a stitch with scissors.

"I am sorry," he said. "I had no right to say that. Please forget that you heard it."

"I already have forgotten it," I told him, liking him for his reticence.

It was a paradise which did not last long," he went on. "The only wonder was that it did not long before shut me from its gates with a flaming sword."

"Many reasons contributed to the unusual length of our idyll," he continued. "The king was never at the castle except when business of state necessitated his presence, while the queen,"—his voice softened involuntarily—"was battling with the beginning of the long illness which later caused her death. My cousin, Rudolph, who loved a commoner, was naturally most sympathetic toward our romance, all the more, I fancy, because it freed him from the otherwise possible embarrassment of having Olga attracted by him—Olga was distinctly eligible for the position of future queen consort of Transvania.

"As for little Marie,"—he smiled with reminiscent tenderness—"she was always urging us to run away to some other country and get married, promising childishly to come and live with us when we were safely settled to our foreign sanctuary.

"I often wonder, especially since Her Majesty has been driven into exile, what would have been the result had we followed Marie's advice."

"But we never had the opportunity to act upon Marie's suggestion," he went on. "Some rumor reached the king, and he came home unexpectedly, calling me before him as soon as he reached the castle."

In the pause that punctuated his words I sensed the finish of that long ago idyll.

"I did not see Olga for many years after that interview with the king," he said at last. "Indeed, the next time I saw her was in New York when I was on the committee to welcome the king and queen of Transvania to the United States. That was the year when Olina ran away—and came to Long Island incognito."

Inexpensive Dishes Offered

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Here is a batch of recipes, each one different but all related only because of their excellence and reasonable cost.

The first is a good onion dish, made by peeling several large onions and boiling them for 10 minutes. Remove the centers and fill them with minced meat or small pieces of kidney. Place them in a baking dish with a little water, small pieces of butter and cover with strips of bacon. Cook in a hot oven for about 30 minutes.

Here is a nice stew: Fry two large sliced onions in meat dripping. When brown, add a pound of stewing beef, which has been cut into small pieces, and fry that. Cover with one and one-half pints cold water, bring to the boil, then throw in a full cup of rice and one pound peeled tomatoes cut into thick slices. Season well, and simmer for two hours. If there is a cup of cold potatoes left over, a good dish can be made by mixing the potatoes with two tablespoons of butter, three tablespoons milk and two well-beaten eggs. Bake in a hot oven until well puffed and nicely browned, and serve at once, sprinkled with chopped parsley.

Skewer Recipe.

Food served "en brochette" or on a skewer is delightful. Take as many skewers as there are diners. Then put on each skewer a piece of fillet of veal, then a piece of bacon, then a piece of liver and so on, until you have enough for each serving. The veal and liver pieces should be about an inch and a half square by three-quarters of an inch thick, and should be rolled first in salt and pepper. Put these filled skewers under the broiler and serve them with French fried or Lyonnaise potatoes and a sauce to your liking. A nice change from mixed grill or blue plate.

A correspondent writes us that she has heard of a recipe for using turkey legs, which she covets. Well, here is an English recipe for devilled drum sticks that may be of assistance to more than one reader. Skin the legs, cut in two at the joints, and make deep gashes in the flesh. Rub all over with a little meat or vegetable extract and fill the gashes with horseradish or curry butter. Former is made by pounding grated horseradish with equal weight of butter, and adding a little salt. The curry butter is made with a tablespoon of butter worked with two teaspoons curry powder and a pinch of cayenne and of black pepper. Sprinkle the legs with pepper and salt, brush with melted butter and broil carefully. Nice served with chutney sauce.

Banana Tea Bread.

Banana Tea Bread is that elusive and much desired "something different." It requires one and three-fourths cup sifted flour, three-fourth teaspoon soda, one and one-fourth teaspoons cream of tartar, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup finely-chopped dates, one-third cup shortennig, two-thirds cup sugar, two well-beaten eggs, one cup mashed ripened bananas (two to three). Sift flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt together three times. Add dates. Rub shortening to creamy consistency with the back of a spoon. Stir the sugar, a few tablespoons at a time, into the shortening, and continue stirring after each addition, until light and fluffy. Add eggs and beat well. Add flour mixture, alternately with bannas, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Pour into well-greased loaf pan (eight and one-half inches by four and one-half inches by three inches) and bake in 350 degrees F. for about an hour and 10 minutes, or until bread is done. Makes one loaf.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, March 5.

Sunday's horoscope holds testimonies of the dawn of another day of surprising developments of a most unpredictable character. There may be sudden upheavals or visitations coming with swift force and holding devastating sway. The swoop might concern an unexpected inheritance or some other financial or romantic windfall, which should not be endangered by extravagance or any kind of excess. Strange adventures and experiences await.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of very startling and devastating experiences, with an adventure of sweeping precipitancy. This might be such a windfall as an inheritance or a prize, impelling to rather extraordinary behavior or commotion. But it would be wise to quell all urges to indulgences, excesses or reckless expenditures.

A child born on this day may be original, inventive, scientifically inclined, extravagant, expansive and indulgent. It may attain surprising position by its audacity, ideas and romantic adventures.

For Monday, March 6.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather exciting day, with much turmoil, confusion, turbulence and cross-purposes. This may be due to an ill temper, strife or litigation. Use restraint, be alert to schemes and treachery, and there may be much personal happiness or social activity. Be guarded with tongue and pen.

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year calling for much calmness, self-control and discretion, since rash, tempestuous and impulsive conduct may lead to defeat, strife and litigation. Be guarded with speech and vigilant as to fraud, schemes, collusion and misrepresentation. Much private pleasure and social, emotional or artistic gratification are probable.

A child born on this day may be talented, artistic and socially popular, although impulsive, reckless, energetic and passionate.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

TOO GOOD A MATCH

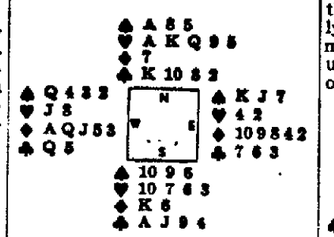
Support of your trump suit by your partner is always desirable. And if you happen to have two suits of considerable length, it also is fine to find him with valuable fillers in the side suit.

But when the suits are not overly long, it is generally best to have your side suit and his side suit non-fitting, as that affords a chance to discard your losers on his suit or his on yours. If side suits of moderate length happen to fit exactly, you can't discard any of the losers in the other suits. You have too good a match then.



(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable.)

With his very welcome holding, North bid 1-Heart here and South responded with 2-Clubs. After West called 2-Diamonds, North was ready for business, knowing that there was a club fit regardless of whether there was one in hearts or not. He showed this with the powerful call of the opponents' suit, 3-Diamonds.

South thereupon showed his heart fit at 3-Hearts, then North his club fit a 4-Clubs, whereupon South bid 4-Hearts to let his partner know he had a really substantial fit.

By now North should have been warned that there was very slight likelihood he would find a place to get rid of his spade losers. He went on unheeding, however, and hopped to 6-Hearts. He lost two spade tricks and one diamond trick, being down two. Had his partner's side suit been spades, there might have been a better chance to get rid of some losers.

A bit of study will show that clubs would have been a better contract than hearts by one trick, as with that suit as trump, a spade loser could have been thrown on the heart suit. It is the old principle that a suit evenly divided between the two hands makes a better trump because the unbalanced side one will furnish one or more discards.

Monday's Problem.

(Dealer: North. Both sides vulnerable.)

If West bids 1-Spade, North 2-Diamonds, East 2-No trump, West 3-Spades and East 3-No trump on this deal, why is a diamond lead more likely to be effective than a heart lead.

Globe flowers are among the brightest of spring blooms. Lemon Queen is a clear bright yellow and Orange Globe is rich in color.

Sends Advice To Another

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

For some time I have been tempted to answer a letter in your column signed "Disconsolate." Like that unhappy lady, my husband also thought "variety is the spice of life," so we came to the parting of the way. I kept a good home for him; he never knew what it was to go without a hot meal. I never nagged, his clothes were always ready. I have since discovered there is such a thing as being too good to a man.

He has married again, but happily. I had a crazy idea breaking up his home, not long ago. He was willing to get divorce and re-marry me. I after seriously thinking it over decided to call it quits. And girl he married was not the ca of our break.

I told him finally that I did not wish to re-marry him, as I no longer loved him. And I have found that as long as I keep my chin up and look on the sunny side of life, I can still make good. My former husband never sees the children nor contributes to their support. I was fortunate enough to have a good mother. All said and done, I feel that I have come out of my experience, on top. FORTUNATE.

Your decision, in not going back to a man who treated you badly and whom you no longer love, is very wise. You are fortunate. My congratulations and best wishes to you.

CONVICT'S DAUGHTER + + +

By RUTH RAY KANE

(Copyright, 1939.)

CHAPTER ELEVEN

LONA laughed as she climbed into the seat of the screaming green roadster Jim had borrowed for the picnic at Wichita lake. It was a ready laugh that was pure enjoyment. He looked so boyish, sitting at the wheel, his long legs stretched out, his voice half sheepish as he assured her the jaunty little car was really a lady despite its loud looks.

"I'm sure she is a lady," she told him solemnly. "Even ladies can be loud on a day like this. Isn't it georgous out?" She sniffed the air as if she had just been released from a long confinement. "Let's speed!" she cried, suddenly, "I want to go fast. I'd like to fly." She laughed again, as the roadster leaped forward under his willing hand.

It was a beautiful ride. The lake, when they reached it, was blue and calm. As they approached it they caught glimpses of it through the bordering pines, glittering in the sun like a huge gem cut into a million gleaming facets. Jim sent the car careening down almost to the water's edge with a final flourish of speed, and turned to Lona triumphantly, and an odd sense of coming home gripped her.

Stepping from the car, she stood for a moment looking up and down the beach searching for familiar landmarks. A stone's throw away she saw a shabby bathhouse, unpainted, and her eyes lighted up with recognition. Eagerly she followed the curve of the shore. Down there would be a cottage—Allen's wasn't it? Yes, there it was! Above the pines a thin cloud of smoke hung motionless in the lazy sunshine and she wondered if, perhaps someone she knew might be there.

"Smells good, this place," Jim was looking about approvingly, sniffing the tangy oder of pine in the air.

She laughed and reached into the car for her bathing suit. "Beat you in!" she challenged him, and ran down the sands to the bathhouse.

Her bathig suit was old. She had purchased it in a fit of extravagance the first year she had been at Ardmore's, hoping that some day she might swin again. It had lain in the wrappings in the bottom of her suitcase ever since and, as she donned it now, and stepped up to the bathhouse mirror, she was sure, for a moment, that it was too terribly out of style. Then, as she caught sight of her own slimness, green-sheathed, her skin white as milk, her spirits soared again, and like a child let out to play, she dashed out into the beach.

Jim was not yet in sight, and she smiled to herself, absurdly pleased at beating him. For a moment she let her eyes wander over the few scattered bathers who lazed in the sun, but she recognized none of them and she felt relieved. It would be awkward to meet any of her old crowd.

She was sitting on the sand, letting streams of its gritty warmth run through her fingers, when Jim appeared. At sight of him loping down upon her, his tall figure showing hard and lean in his bathing suit, a queer shyness seized her.

"Race you out to the float!" she cried, in an effort to hide it and, wading out, she plunged into the water.

She had loved to swim in the old days, and had come close to being the champion of her crowd. As she cut through the blue ripples, her white arms flashing above her head, she was suddenly glad that there was one thing, at least, she could do well. Behind her she heard Jim splashing to overtake her, and she quickened her stroke, finding her old ease more and more. When she finally climbed up on the bobing float out in the middle of the lake, he was barely beside her, and she laughed at the look of admiration he bent on her.

"Whew!" he ejaculated. "You're sure a swimmer, girl. Where did you learn?"

"Right here," she told him, his praise warming her heart. "This lake is an old haunt of mine.

"I didn't think you could learn to swim like that in fresh water. Mean to tell me you've never been near the ocean?" He looked down at her, the water dripping from his wet hair, giving his lean face a curiously boyish look. Remembering suddenly the miles he had wandered from his home in far-off, almost mythical California, her brief moment of triumph vanished and she felt shy again.

They sat on the float for a long time, talking as they swayed to the gentle motion of the waves. Somehow the proximity of the water seemed to make him loquacious, and he told her fascinating tales of the many cities in which he had worked. Listening, Lona found herself wondering about him anew. Beyond the one mention of his sister that first night when he had been trying to re-assure her, he had never really told her anything about himself. He never talked, as she did, of his family, of his schooling, of his background. Until now she hadn't even connected him with the ocean.

"Tell me, what did you do before you started all this wandering?" she asked, idly, and was startled at the look that leaped into his eyes. It was as if she had hurt him, somehow.

"I guess I've always been a wanderer," he said, vaguely, and fell silent, staring out across the lake, all the brightness gone from his face. Dabbling her feet in the water, Lona watched him, troubled and wondering, wishing she could recall the words that had changed his mood.

They ate their lunch on a flat-topped rock to which Lona, proud of her knowldge of the place, led him. It was a queer lunch that set her laughing as she unpacked it. A man's choice. Thick sandwiches of hamburger from a corner stand, pickles in a paper carton, a whole pie, and a thermos bottle of steaming coffee. Lona giggled as she tried to fit her mouth over one of the huge sandwiches.

"I like 'em that way," Jim assured her, complacently. "A fellow can get a grip on these. Boy, there's been many a time when I'd have given my right eye for a hamburger like this!"

"They are good," Lona found herself devouring hers hungrily. After the exhileration of the water she was starved. And it was such fun to eat like this.

They had finished their coffee when she caught sight of a bathing party coming along the sands from the Allen cottage, and her heart jumped. Gertrude Allen was leading, and among the girls following her was another familiar face. Facing them, swift panic seized Lona. All the hurt of those last days in Bridgewater came rushing back; those days after her father had gone away, and she had been dropped by everybody, stared at and cut by these very girls.

Would they cut her now, she wondered? Before Jim! She knew suddenly that it would hurt far more to be cut in front of Jim. Shrinking, she wished she had never come here. She should have known better. Following her eyes, Jim took in the strolling girls.

"Friends of yours?" he asked.

"I—don't know." Had she looked at him she would have seen a look of understanding leap into his eyes. Swiftly he calculated the distance to their parked car.

"Shall we—go?" he asked, his voice carrying an added tenderness. "We can slip over to the car before they get here."

For a moment Lona was tempted. Then she threw up her head. "No!" she said almost fiercely. "I want another swim. Come on."

"Good girl!" she heard him say as she started toward the water. As she approached a silence fell on the group at the water's edge. For a moment Gertrude Allen looked at her, startled, then, carelessly, she turned her back and reached for the red water ball beside her. A whipped feeling caught at Lona. Gertrude Allen had been one of her best friends.

Wading out through the water, she plunged in fiercely and struck off toward the middle of the lake. For a moment she forgot Jim as the old bewildered pain possessed her. It was unjust. She had done nothing—nothing. And they acted as if she were a leper! Cutting through the water with savage strokes, she sent herself flying forward recklessly. Past the float she went on out into the rippling blue water. In the old days she had often tried to swim the length of the lake, and she had been on the point of succeeding when the tragedy that had blasted her life had overtaken her.

She remembered that old ambition now and, gritting her teeth, set herself for the grind she had taken so joyously in the past. The need to express her outraged feelings put a savage fierceness into her strokes that soon sent her far past the middle of the lake. Jim's voice calling out a worried protest came to her, but she kept on doggedly. She had made three-fourths of the long grind before she realized, suddenly, that she was terribly tired. Her muscles, weakened by disuse, began to protest. Her arms went oddly numb and she felt faint. But she resolved, savagely, not to call for help and satisfy that crowd of snobs back there.

Floating for a moment's rest, she lifted her head for a glimpse of the shore that was her destination. It was farther away than she had thought—terrifyingly far away.
